"What was it like in 1965?" The query came from an old family friend, a member of the class of 1936, and a man who had been very instrumental in my decision to come here. I couldn't help recalling how impressed I had been at a Sewanee football game in my home town during my senior year in high school. This man, the rector of the largest parish in town, had taken it upon himself to revive a little of the old Sewanee Spirit and proceeded to lead the small devoted cadre of spectators in a few classic cheers understood only by Arcadians. He had obviously done a lot of this sort of thing before; the only difference was that he was now wearing a clerical collar instead of a letter sweater. I remembered thinking at the time that a school which could inspire this kind of loyalty in one of her sons nearly thirty years after he had graduated must really have something to offer.

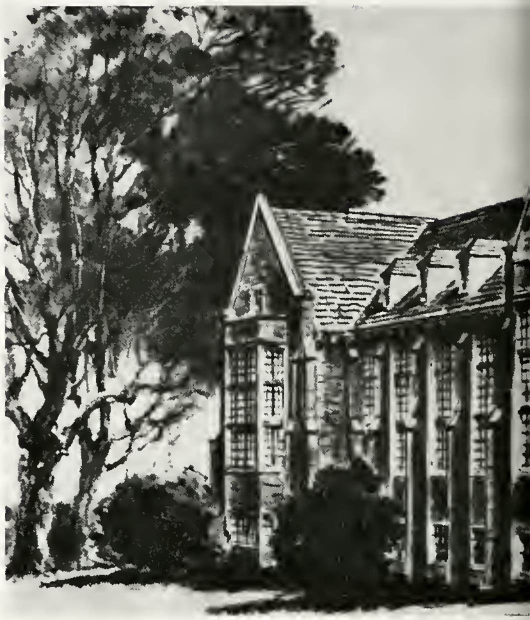
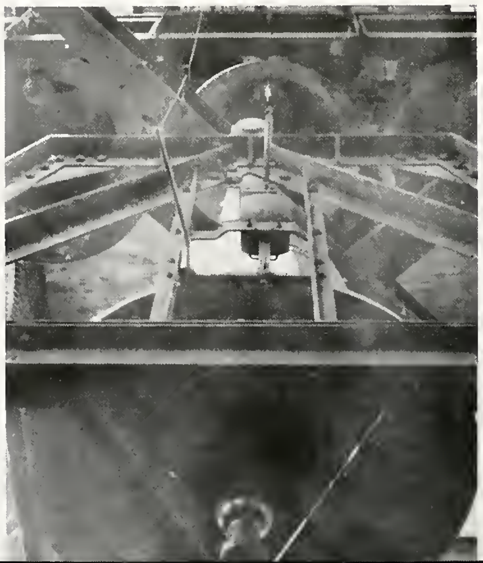
books, parties, day dreams,

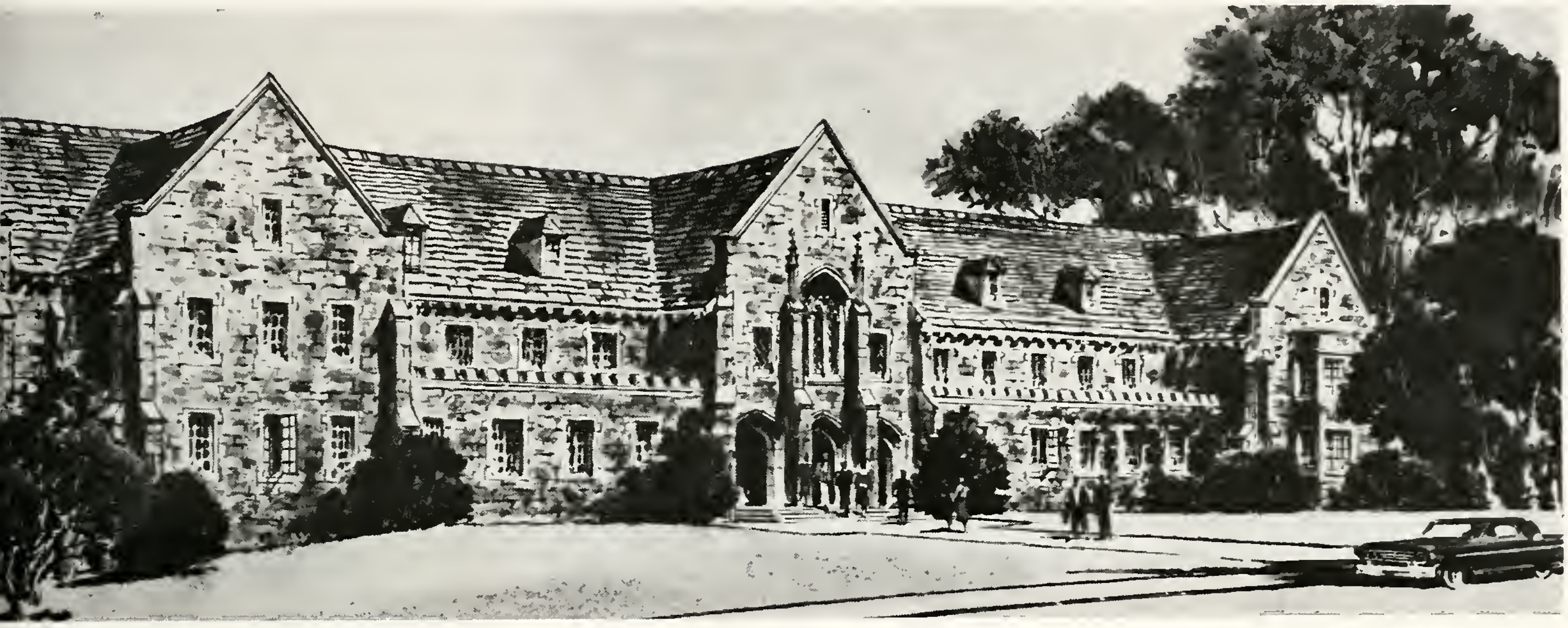
Before I could answer he continued: "I probably wouldn't even recognize the place now. I understand they finally finished the chapel and that the tower is taller than Breslin. Shameful! And what's with all those turrets? I really can't imagine Walsh with a center hall and adequate lighting. Sure lost a lot of character when they rebuilt it. First thing you know they'll be completing the quadrangle. I know it was planned that way, but it just won't seem like Sewanee. And to top it all off I got a letter the other day from my old chapter saying the house had burned down and asking for money for a new one. I'm really not sure I ever want to go back; the place just wouldn't be the same."

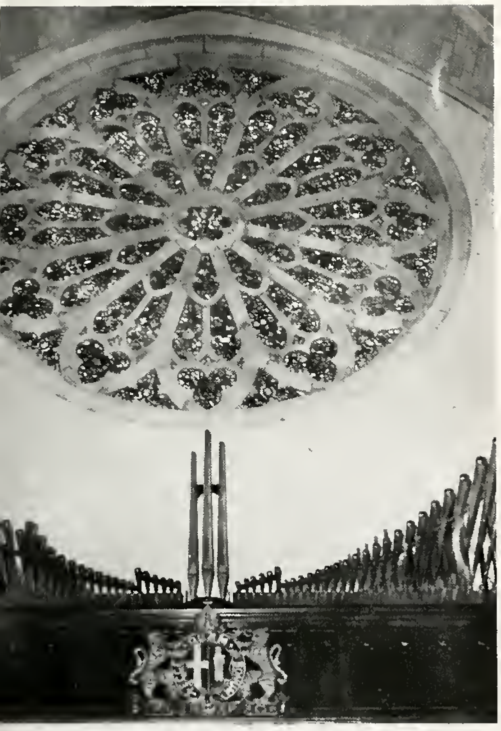
I interrupted. "Aren't you dealing with superficialities? There must have been more than just the buildings when you were an undergraduate. What about the old Sewanee spirit you alumni are always raving about when you chastise us for seeming apathetic? There's more than hoopla to that, too. There's something else, some kind of genius, some form of magic, which makes our contact with her meaningful and precious, no matter what the year. Let's see if we can discover what it is."





fraternities,





We sat in silence for some time. Then he said in a reflective tone, "I was there during the worst part of the Depression. There were about 150 students in the College during my freshman year. The enrollment didn't change much while I was there. Everybody knew everybody else and we had the feeling that we were all in this together. Don't get me wrong; we raised just as much of it as you fellows today, maybe more. But the University was in awfully bad shape financially and those hard times brought out the best in all of us. That genius you were talking about reached out and grabbed us and commanded our devotion. When the University Prayer was read in daily chapel, we really prayed for that 'never-failing succession of benefactors' you fellows sometimes scoff at. When we heard 'Gentlemen, the Vice-Chancellor,' we snapped to out of respect, not because it was customary. This man was doing a superhuman job with only human abilities and we appreciated it. You really would have to have witnessed one of those Thanksgiving Day games against Vanderbilt to know what real school spirit is.

tradition we value and wish to

"And it wasn't just the students. The faculty were knocking themselves out, too. I suppose all of them have retired or passed on now, except for Bruton and Abbo. I have never seen a more dedicated group of men. They devoted their lives and talents entirely to the Sewanee ideal of a liberal arts education of the whole man. This wasn't a particularly popular theory at the time because the whole tenor of higher education was pragmatic. If a man didn't have a certain skill his schooling was thought to be worthless. Size was another big fad in those days, too. The University of Chicago was the largest school in the country and was therefore the best. It required a great deal of courage for these men to buck the tide. But buck they did, and I believe the subsequent course of education has given eloquent testimony to their faith."

He lapsed into a pensive silence and I took up the conversation: "I'll concede only one point. Perhaps our spirit in physical and vocal terms isn't quite the equivalent of yours and your classmates', but that seems to be one of the characteristics of our generation.

all, to learn

"Our feeling for Sewanee is no less ardent, however. We, too, have been touched by that irresistible, magnetic genius of the Mountain, and we have responded in our own way. The 'never-failing succession' seems rather commercial from our increasingly critical religious viewpoint, but there's not one among us who isn't daily thankful for the benefits of this succession, such as the new Library and the better dormitory facilities. We bitch about the Administration, but usually over very minor points. The only serious bone of contention is required chapel, but I understand that's nothing new. We don't play Vandy anymore. but W & L is going to have their hands full both on the field and in the stands come next Homecoming. And we still love our matrons and our dogs!

"Most of your old professors have gone. but kindred spirits have taken their places. Our faculty probably publishes more than previous ones, but the primary emphasis is still on teaching.I'm also happy to say that the intimate flavor of faculty-student relations which prevailed in your day prevails in ours. The devotion to the liberal arts is stronger than ever, and today we are in excellent company when we expound Sewanee's philosophy of education. Though the Sewanee Man by nature shuns statistics, surveys, and polls, it is comforting to note the rank given Sewanee by these pragmatic perversions of pure mathematics. We may still have to prove that the best space scientists majored in Greek, but that part of our great academic struggle is of small consequence."

"All this sounds very much like the Sewanee of my day," he replied. "But there's only one thing bothering me, and that's this expansion program. It seems to me they're moving too fast; I'm afraid some of the essence of Sewanee will be lost in the transition."

the meaning of

My response was almost immediate. "It doesn't seem likely that anything essential which has been preserved over the thirty years which separates our respective Sewanee experiences, in spite of an increase from 150 to 800 students, is going to be lost in the next ten years with an influx of only 400 more. And we are not in a period of transition. The word implies a change from one situation to another, from Sewanee to a 'New Sewanee'. This just isn't going to happen. What we're going through right now is a period of fulfillment. The best word to describe the process involved in this fulfillment is not transition, but escalation. For the first time in her history Sewanee has the means at hand to fulfill her destiny, which she must do if she is to remain true to the trust of the Founders. This demands in part paying heed to Cardinal Newman's charge for a university to be 'an Alma Mater, knowing her children one by one: not a foundry, a mint, or a treadmill.' I am confident in Sewanee's ability to absorb more children and still to know them 'one by one.'

"In short, sir, 1965 was an exciting time to be at Sewanee. Things were happening and happening fast. All around us we could see the Founders' dreams taking on flesh and stone. Nineteen sixty-five was indeed a year of fulfillment."

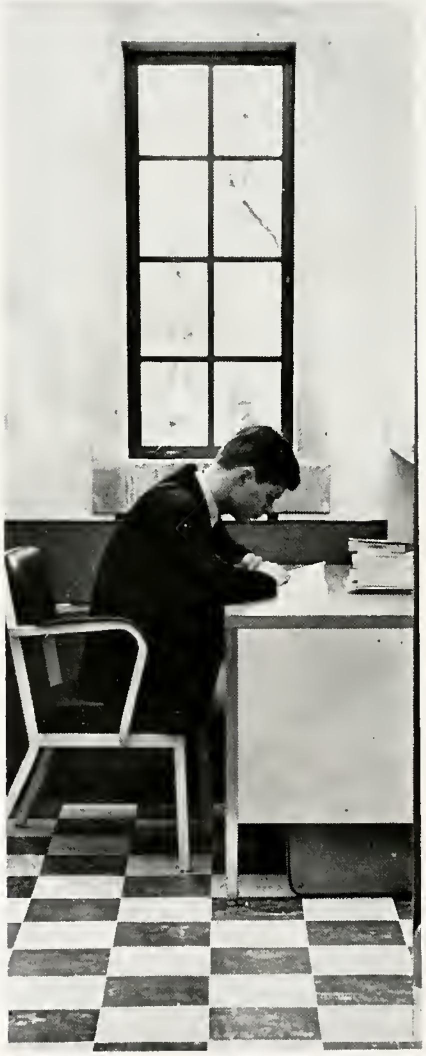
"Remember that genius of Sewanee we mentioned earlier?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"What do you suppose it is?"

"Well, Hegel would probably have called it a geist. Dr. Guerry characterized it as a 'vision of greatness.' "

"In my opinion," he said quietly, "it is nothing less than the Holy Spirit."



Alma Mater, Sewanee.

A yearbook has a rather nebulous journalistic function. It is not supposed to editorialize or be exclusively literary or humorous. At Sewanee the Purple and the Goat fill these capacities. In its broadest sense a yearbook is history, a history to be approached with the idea of providing a full account of a single year. Whether or not this is possible in a mere two hundred pages is a question you will have to decide not now, but when this book has become old.

In writing and picturing the history of nineteen sixty-five, we have tried to make this CAP AND GOWN a definition of Sewanee specifically in terms of this year. There is an overwhelming possibility that what is printed in this book is incomplete, for there are as many Sewanees as there are members of this academic community. Yet, it is our purpose and hope that in this 1965 CAP AND GOWN there will be enough of that which we call "Sewanee" or "The Mountain" so that each of you will be able to discover at least a part of your definition. If you can do this now and then do it again in thirty years, if this book can recall to you the Sewanee of 1965, we will have succeeded.

Dedication

That "a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country" well characterizes the sentiment behind the choice of Arthur Ben Chitty to receive the dedication of the 1965 Cap and Gown. Academician, he has published more than most of the teaching faculty. Churchman, he participates in the work of the Episcopal Church on the local, diocesan, and national levels. Civic leader, he was ten years the liaison of the civic association with the Negro community. Journalist, he publishes the Sewanee News, serves as chairman of the Publications Board and as a director of the Living Church. Publicist and alumni director, he is one of the senior practitioners of his craft in the South. Businessman, he is chairman of the board of directors of a wholesale grocery company. Activist, and, to some gadfly, to some saint, he is the willing patron of a good idea.

A committed man, in a time of indecision, he believes wholly in the importance and relevance of Sewanee in Twentieth Century America. His involvement with Sewanee, from her auspicious origins as a someday Oxford of America, her arduous re-birth in discouraging times, to her recognition by the Ford Grant, and her future as a fulfillment of the founders' dreams seems sometimes overshadowed by his concern for the attendant minutiae (he is self-appointed campus trash collector, sponsor of more fraternities for the Mountain, and reactionary devoté of the coat and tie), though in fact all are representative of a long-term commitment to "a towered city, set within a wood," and a host of men who "hail from Arcady."

It is then, with pride, appreciation, and respect, that the 1965 Cap and Gown is dedicated to Arthur Ben Chitty.

Presiding Bishop John E. Hines and Mr. Chitty.

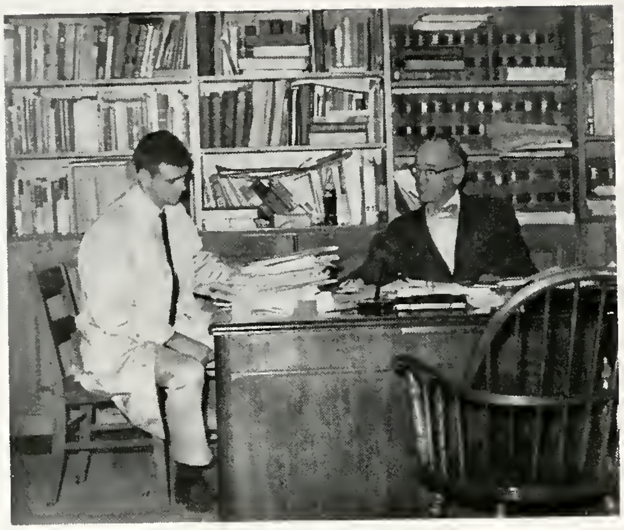
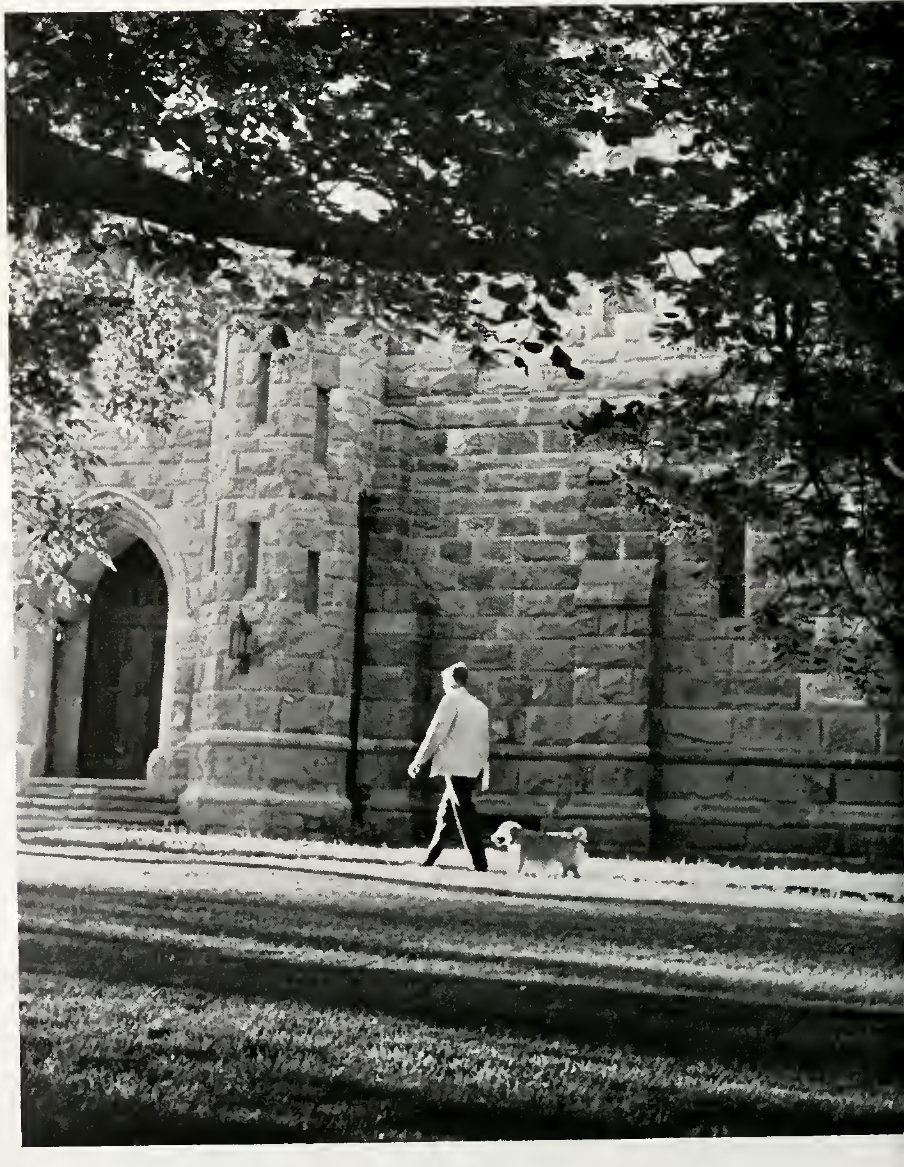
University

Sewanee means the University, its past, present, and future; its traditions, ideals, and goals; its students, faculty, and administration; its matrons, dogs, and fog; and finally its guiding genius, be it geist, vision, or Spirit. The dream of a University of the South was kindled in the minds of far-sighted men who saw a very real need for such an institution. The dream lay suppressed but still burning in the breasts of these men through the shattering experiences of War and the ensuing economic ruin of the region the University was to serve. With faith they began anew, with hope they built, and the flame of the dream waxed slowly higher, at times flickering, at times nearly dying, but always finding sufficient fuel in the devoted efforts of dedicated men inspired and refreshed by some Power greater than themselves. In 1965 reaching the realization of the dream seems only slightly beyond our grasp; the flame is higher than ever and demands greater quantities of the fuel of dedication and sacrifice. "We are equal to the task. We will nourish this flame."





The Chancellor

The Chancellor of the University of the South is elected by the Board of Trustees from the bishops of Sewanee's twenty-one owning dioceses. The present Chancellor is the Right Reverend Charles Colcock Jones Carpenter, Bishop of Alabama, who has held the post since 1960. Although not a graduate of the University, Bishop Carpenter has long-standing ties with Sewanee and was a trustee for many years before he became Chancellor. He holds a B.A. from Princeton and a B.D. from Virginia Theological Seminary. Princeton, Virginia, Sewanee, and the University of Alabama have awarded him honorary degrees.

Following in the English tradition, Sewanee's Chancellor is burdened with few administrative responsibilities. He serves as president of the Board of Trustees, ex-officio member of the Board of Regents, and confers honorary degrees at Commencement ceremonies.

The Vice-Chancellor

Sewanee is fortunate to have as its chief executive a man who embodies the ideals of the University. Dr. Edward McCrady, eleventh Vice-Chancellor of the University of the South, indeed personifies the Christian gentleman and scholar which Sewanee seeks to produce. A biologist by profession, Dr. McCrady is an accomplished musician, artist, and woodcarver. His other interests include architecture, theology, and speleology. The institution of the liberal arts college has no more articulate apologist.

Dr. McCrady received his B.A. from the College of Charleston, his M.S. from the University of Pittsburgh, and his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania. He was chairman of Sewanee's biology department and chief biologist at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies before assuming his present position in 1951. As Vice-Chancellor he serves as president of the University Corporation and is the University's top administrative officer.

Rev. R. R. Brown, Henry O. Weaver, Rev H. C. Gosnell, Rev. C. F. Schilling. R. G. Snowden, Chairman of the Board.

Board of Regents

The Board of Regents, which is elected by the Board of Trustees, is the executive board of the University. It is composed of three bishops, three priests, and six laymen of the Episcopal Church, with the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor serving as ex-officio members. This board performs all duties pertaining to the government and maintenance of the University except those particularly reserved by the Board of Trustees. The Regents also have the power to grant honorary degrees. The Board holds regular meetings at Sewanee three times a year.

For the past two years, the Regents have been intimately concerned with the Ten Million Dollar Campaign, inspired by a matching grant from the Ford Foundation. The proceeds from the Campaign will go to finance the University's expansion program, which includes the new duPont Library and plans for new science facilities, dormitories, faculty housing, and a new dining hall.

This year the Regents initiated the new policy of conferring with student leaders at each regular meeting. In this way the student body has a more direct voice in the government of the University.

Deans

Gaston Swindell Bruton, Ph.D.
Provost

Since he came to the Mountain in 1925, Dr. Bruton has played a vital role in all phases of Sewanee life. He is chairman of the mathematics department, tennis coach, and faculty chairman of athletics. As Provost he is the University's second-ranking administrative officer.

Dr. John M. Webb

John Maurice Webb, Ph.D.
Acting Dean of the College

Due to the sabbatical leave of Dr. Robert S. Lancaster, Dr. Webb assumed the duties of the Dean of the College this year. He is responsible for the academic rules and requirements of the College. In other capacities, Dr. Webb is professor of American history, member of the local draft board, and a justice of the peace.

Charles O'Connor Baird, D.F.
Acting Dean of Men

In his first year of this difficult job, Dr. Baird is concerned with student counseling, disciplinary problems, and room assignments. He is also associate professor of forestry, a member of the Publications Board, and Director of the Sewanee Summer School.

Woodrow Wilson Fellows

Woodrow Wilson Fellows Fretwell, James, and McGinnis are congratulated by Dr. Gilchrist and McCrady. T. C. Poe was absent.

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation each year provides approximately one thousand fellowships for one year of graduate work. These stipends are awarded on the basis of intellectual maturity and promise.

This year Sewanee had four men named as Woodrow Wilson Fellows and received ten honorable mentions. The fellows are pictured; those receiving honorable mention were Tom Chesley, Dave Darst, Ian Gaston, Woody Hannum, Jim Koger, Allen Lear, Sandy Lumpkin, Jack Sanders, Mike Speer, and Phil White.

St. Luke's Hall

Dean of Theology

The Very Reverend George Moyer Alexander was appointed Dean of the School of Theology in 1956. Dean Alexander was awarded his Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Divinity, and Master of Sacred Theology degrees from the University of the South, and his Doctor of Divinity degree from the Virginia Theological Seminary. Dr. Alexander also has been awarded the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology from Seabury-Western.

These are the facts about the gentleman, but not the gentleman. There is no way in which to describe Dean Alexander's leadership, understanding, patience, and affection in the development of St. Luke's. Dean Alexander is truly a Father in God.

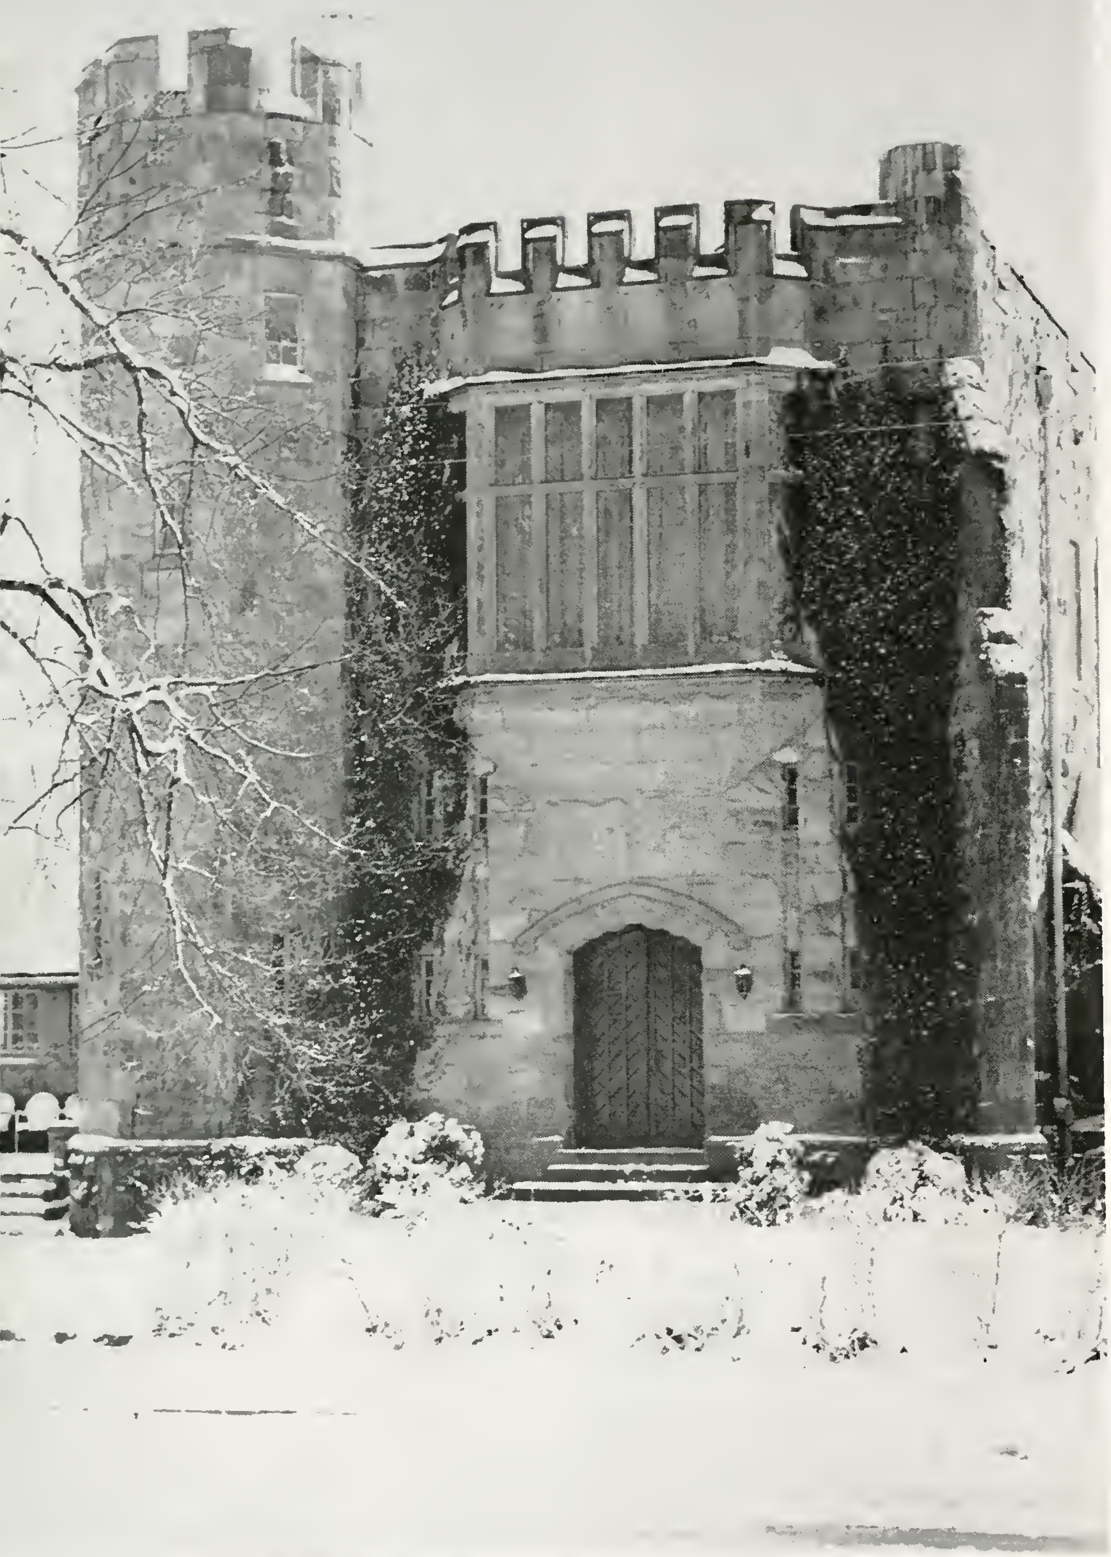
Fraternities

Gerbrand Poster III
'65



Sewanee means Fraternities. Our Alma Mater was founded in faith, built in hope, and her sons are bound together with the ties of brotherly love best exemplified in her Hellenic Societies. Thirteen chapters have been founded on the Mountain since 1877; eleven remain today, each according to its talents contributing to the social, athletic, and quite often the intellectual life of the campus. Rather than being a source of faction, the fraternities are a vital factor in the unity of the student body, a unity not monolithic and anonymous, but diverse and intimately personal. There is naturally a fierce pride within each group, as evidenced by the size of the crowds on both sides of the intramural field and by the spirited competition on the field itself. But the chapters join together at varsity events, on party weekends, and during Help Week to give their best effort for the University. At these times and others it is abundantly clear that Sewanee's Greeks are Sewanee Men first, fraternity men second.

The Fraternity System

> Men that can have communion in > nothing else, can sympathetically > eat together, can still rise into > some glow of brotherhood over food > and wine.
> —Thomas Carlyle

The grind is what we came for, but not all. Leave the books, drop the pen, down to the house for a beer and a game. Or over to so-and-so's room, gab about that gross (professor, pledge) you both dislike. Impress your date. Take in a flic with the crew; toss the ball against others like you; struggle for equal portions at the table. Defend it loyally to outsiders and gripe at meetings.

And that's about all fraternities are good for.

It's apparently enough: 68% of us are fratrats. But here we're different, unique, no matter how hard it may be to convince the national office. Here are the most socially unfraternal of social fraternities, groups which neither live nor eat at the house, open it to virtually anyone who comes in, who associate as much with the Uninitiated as with their brothers. The most democratic of discriminators, the most independent of joiners, as well as the party-liner: we take all kinds.

A fraternity man makes an average grade point of 2.419. In the last decade, 66.6% of the valedictorians, 77.77% of the Phi Beta Kappas, and 86.67% of the Woodrow Wilson Fellows have been members of the eleven chapters.

In Rush Week they try to convince strangers that Brand A is the One True Way; in Hell Week they find out from friends how convincing they had been.

They hold pledge teas to impress the faculty and their contemporaries; they have beer blasts to express themselves.

A Sewanee fraternity means almost anything. Bull-sessions, Gailor meals, rituals, sports, rivalries, friendships, study conferences, politics, beer, parties, grade points, poker, rules, selectivity, personalities, obedience, dissension, salesmanship, pool, television, work, competition, prestige, handicaps; the Bloodmobile, Homecoming floats, the Blue Key Sing; a group identity to fall back on or an incentive to improvement; a loose collection of distinct individuals or a clan of like minds.

All of this, trying to dwell together in unity. Most of the time it succeeds.

Pan Hellenic Council

The Pan-Hellenic Council is a standing committee of the Order of Gownsmen with members representing each of the eleven fraternities and the Association of Independent Men.

This committee regulates the activities of the chapters in such important areas as Rush Week and pledge training. It serves as a valuable fraternity-faculty liaison agency, and this year after Rush Week when fraternities netted the smallest percentage of the freshman class in history, a student-faculty committee was established to determine more effective methods of rushing. The formation of this committee is perhaps one indication of the Council's effectiveness in coordinating fraternity life on the Mountain with faculty desires to see the system work for the good of all.

In its biggest venture of the year Pan-Hell has set up a fraternity publications board to edit an inter-fraternity rush magazine. In this brochure fraternity life at Sewanee and Rush Week rules will be explained to entering freshmen. Each lodge will be allotted a number of pages to explain its particular activities and qualities. It is hoped that this magazine, which will be the only printed fraternity material mailed out, will be less confusing and of greater benefit to freshmen than the former barrage of eleven different pamphlets.

ATΩ

The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity was founded in Richmond, Virginia, on September 11, 1865. Its first active chapter was located at V.M.I. in Lexington, Virginia. Founded in 1877, the original chapter at Sewanee consisted of only fourteen men because the fraternal organizations were unwelcome by the University officials. The chapter at Sewanee was first known as the Theta chapter, was later changed to the Tennessee Omega chapter. Until the year 1880 the meetings were conducted in the buildings once used as the University library, but in 1886 construction was begun on the house which lasted until the fire in 1959. The present A.T.O. House includes the outer walls of the original house.

Since the day of the founding of the Omega chapter, the A.T.O.'s at Sewanee have led the way in every field. Of all the A.T.O. chapters in the nation, Tennessee Omega was chosen last year as one of the top three scholastically. At this writing the chapter has already won the trophies for intramural football and swimming. Members of the Omega chapter have also been active in the other organizations on campus; for example, two junior Phi Beta Kappa members, captain of the swimming team and past president of the Order of Gownsmen.

With such a venerable background and with members of such potential, the Tennessee Omega chapter of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity will maintain its lead on the "Mountain" in both the near and distant future.

An ideal fraternal group is one in which truly varied individuals can find compatibility and common interest in one another. The Gamma Chi chapter of Beta Theta Pi at Sewanee is proud of its diverse membership which has resulted in a distinct way of life.

A true "pioneer" fraternity, Beta Theta Pi in 1839 reflected the westward move of the young United States in its founding at Miami University of Ohio. It was the first fraternity to form west of the Allegheny Mountains. Beta was the pioneer fraternity on thirty-two campuses—a history no other national fraternity can match. In character, it is very national; the one hundred twenty-three chapters are found in all sections of the country.

This principle of diversity is embodied in the Sewanee chapter. In Gamma Chi are found the outstanding campus athletes, student leaders, and scholars. It is hard to name an organization at Sewanee which does not have at least one Beta in its membership. The last two graduating classes have seen a Little All-American and a Phi Beta Kappa, both of whom were brothers of Beta Theta Pi. This year five Betas were nominated for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

All these formidable honors belong to guys who are actually plain, human college men seen at their best in the simple activities down at the Beta House. A sincere interest in each brother is the only common trait of the members of Beta Theta Pi.

Alpha

The founding of Sewanee's eleventh social fraternity was culminated November 7, 1964, with the official welcoming of Alpha Tau Delta into the bonds of Chi Psi.

Founded May 20, 1841, at Union College, Chi Psi ranks eighth among fraternities in age. Originally only in the Northeast, it has more recently expanded west and south. Established as a social brotherhood and fused by the tragic death of one of its founders, the fraternity is to this day distinguished by the close and lasting friendship cultivated between its members. Old in years, young in adaptibility to changing times, steadfast in adherence to its ideals . . . this is Chi Psi.

A successful rush doubled the initial membership of Tau Delta to twenty-two and gave the new Alpha a strong start. A lot was purchased at the head of a new lake near the du Pont library and plans drawn up for completing a lodge by September, 1965. Led by a Woodrow Wilson nominee, the fraternity last semester achieved the highest academic average ever held by a fraternity at Sewanee. With an active pledge class the new Alpha participated fully in intramurals and interfraternity activity. Its members have forged the bonds of brotherhood into a firm foundation for a successful future.

Delta Tau Delta was founded at Bethany College in West Virginia in 1858. Twenty-eight years later, in 1886, the Rainbow Society of Ole Miss was admitted to this brotherhood. Here at Sewanee the Beta Theta chapter was founded on June 23, 1883.

During these eighty years its members have been distinguished contributors to the fine arts, the church, the business world, and the academic world. Sewanee's history has been enriched by members of the chapter: Newton Middleton wrote the Alma Mater and Dr. George B. Myers was a guiding force in the School of Theology.

In the contemporary history of Sewanee we are honored to include men whose service to the University is notable: Rt. Rev. Frank A. Juhan; Mr. William W. Lewis, professor emeritus of Spanish; the Rev. Ellis Bearden, verger of All Saints' Chapel, Mr. John Hodges, University Associate Librarian, and Mr. Eric Cheape.

The valued guidance which is received from these gentlemen cannot be replaced. By following their precept and example, the Delts have maintained that position of excellence which our tradition demands in all facets of University life.

This year's accomplishments are highlighted by the pledging of fifteen men, the scoring of intramural points in all events, and the usual blending of work and pleasure.

With a look backward to our heritage and with visions of the future, we continue to appreciate our years at Sewanee.

KA

Kappa Alpha Order was founded at Washington and Lee University on December 21, 1865. James Ward Wood, William Scott, Stanhope Scott, and William Walsh are venerated as the Order's founders. Because the birth of this new Order took place at the college of which General Robert E. Lee was then the president, it is natural that it should embrace as its aim the cultivation of those virtues and graces which had made that great man eminent in character, both in peace and in war, and even afterwards in defeat.

The Kappa Alpha Order is Southern in this sense: its members cherish the ideal of a Gentleman, of which Robert E. Lee was the perfect expression. In keeping with the Southern tradition, our colors are crimson and old gold; the official flowers are the red rose and the magnolia blossom. The Order is thus Southern in origin and belief, but it is not sectional.

Alpha Alpha Chapter of the Order was founded at Sewanee in 1883, eighteen years after the national founding. Throughout the chapter's eighty-one year history, its members have been prominent in every segment of University life. Cherishing its tradition, upholding the spirit of its founders, and proud of its rich Southern heritage, Alpha Alpha Chapter of Kappa Alpha looks forward with confidence, hoping not only to equal the excellence of its predecessors, but to set new goals for the members of the future.

About the year 1400 at the University of Bologna, Italy, a society was formed for the purpose of protecting foreign students from Bologna's ruthless and corrupt governor, Balthasar Cossa. It was in the tradition of this ancient order that modern Kappa Sigma was founded on December 10, 1869, at the University of Virginia by five young men—George Miles Arnold, John Covert Boyd, William Grigsby McCormick, Frank Courtney Nicodemus, and Edmond Law Rogers.

While these five brothers are given credit for founding modern Kappa Sigma, an early initiate, Stephen Alonzo Jackson, was most responsible for its expansion. He established several new chapters, the members of which dedicated themselves to the formation of still others. As a result of these efforts Kappa Sigma today has brothers in 136 chapters in the United States and Canada.

Among the chapters which Jackson helped found was Omega chapter at The University of the South which came into being in 1882. This was Kappa Sigma's seventeenth chapter and was the third fraternity established at Sewanee. After a few early years of hardship, Omega chapter rapidly prospered and won many distinctions among Kappa Sigma chapters. For example, Omega chapter built the first chapter house owned by a Kappa Sigma chapter. From its membership have come five bishops of the Episcopal church, Kappa Sigma's first Rhodes Scholar, and many of the fraternity's national officers.

It is in this tradition that Kappa Sigma lives today at Sewanee. The chapter's members and pledges are active in many phases of school life. These brothers exemplify the Kappa Sigma tradition of "Good fellows . . . full of spirit and all in for a good time."

Lambda Chi Alpha was founded at Boston University on November 2, 1909. Although one of the youngest national fraternities, it has experienced phenomenal growth since its founding. In 1939 a merger was negotiated with Theta Kappa Nu, the largest such combination in the history of the inter-fraternity world. Today Lambda Chi Alpha ranks third in size among all national fraternities, with 156 chapters and over 90,000 members.

In February, 1961, a group of fourteen Sewanee men formed Upsilon Sigma, a new local fraternity, with the intention of eventually affiliating with a national organization. These men found in Lambda Chi a concept of fraternalism which coincided very closely with their own and on May 6, 1961, Upsilon Sigma was reorganized as the Sewanee Colony of Lambda Chi Alpha. After two years of hard work, the Colony met the rigid requirements for a charter and on April 6, 1963, Iota-Nu Zeta (chapter) was installed.

In four short years the brothers of Lambda Chi have made remarkable progress. Shortly after installation, construction was begun on a beautiful stone lodge which now stands at the south end of the fraternity oval. Emphasizing the positive side of fraternalism, the chapter has followed a no-hazing policy from the first and has led the Sewanee Greek system in the field of public services, winning the Bloodmobile trophy for three years in a row and performing numerous projects both on and off the Mountain. The fraternity has made steady improvement in scholarship and the chapter roll now includes six Wilkins Scholars, two Phi Beta Kappas, one Woodrow Wilson Fellow, and the first winner of the Borden Freshman Prize. Building on the firm foundations of the founding brothers, Iota-Nu Zeta of Lambda Chi Alpha looks forward to a promising future.

Phi Delta Theta was founded on December 28, 1848, at Miami University (of Ohio), by brothers Morrison, Wilson, Drake, Rodgers, Lindley, and Rogers. The fraternity's purpose is multifold: the cultivation of fellowship, the acquisition of mental culture, and the development of a personal standard of morality. It provides the balance between conflicting ideals that permeates an atmosphere of brotherhood, that fosters growth into manhood.

Tennessee Beta was recognized by the national headquarters in March, 1883. Plans for the house were considered in the fall of 1884 and one was erected that year. The Sewanee Phis thus became one of the first fraternities in the South, and the first Phi chapter in the nation, to own its own house. In 1907, work began on the Castle, our present house, which was modeled after Founder's Tower, Oxford.

The Phi chapter is the present holder of Sewanee's intramural trophy, which, if everything goes as planned, it will retire this year, having held it already for the last two years. This summer at the fraternity's National Convention in Pasadena, California, Tennessee Beta was given the Herrick trophy for the second straight year, a symbol of academic achievement.

Positions held by the Phis in campus activities include: president of the Order Of Gownsmen, president of the Jazz Society, student representative to the Athletic Board of Control, and president of the Choir.

The Sewanee Phis are especially proud of their chapter advisor, Dr. Oscar Noel Torian, who is the holder of the Raymond L. Gardner award given to the most outstanding member of Phi Delta Theta in the nation.

The fraternity of Phi Gamma Delta was founded May 1, 1848, on the campus of the old Jefferson College (now Washington and Jefferson) in Canonsburg, Pennsylvania. Within the same year, another chapter was founded. Early expansion was southward, where most of the Washington and Jefferson students lived. From there, it has built up chapters at major colleges and universities in most of the states of the Union and in Canada. Today, the international fraternity has a total of 88 chapters made up of over 65,000 active and alumni members.

On October 23, 1919, the national Archons of Phi Gamma Delta granted a charter to the previously local Sewanee fraternity, Alpha Gamma Sigma. The newly created chapter, Gamma Sigma, grew rapidly until World War II forced all Sewanee fraternities to become inactive. However, Dr. James Thorogood, former head of the Sewanee Economics Department, worked hard to get the Phi Gams back on their feet.

A fire in January, 1960, totally destroyed the old Fiji lodge. Work was begun on the present house during the summer of that year. The new house can be attributed to the dedicated time and work of Dr. Thorogood and Charles M. Boyd of Tracy City.

Today, Fijis hold many positions of campus leadership. Among these are their two honor council members, three proctors, the president of the IFC, and the president of the Arnold Air Society. Two Fijis were elected to Who's Who. Dr. William B. Campbell, assistant professor of history, is the chapter "Purple Legionnaire."

In athletics, the Phi Gams have always been a campus power. In addition to being represented in every varsity sport, they are also strong intramural competitors.

ΣAE

On March 9, 1856 Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, by eight young men of the University of Alabama. They met secretly that night and formed what was to become the largest social fraternity in America.

The initiation of seven men including General Edmund Kirby-Smith and William Alexander Guerry on August 20, 1881, marked the founding of Tennessee Omega at Sewanee. Omega was the first SAE chapter to own its own house. Thus the lodge, built in 1886, became a national shrine.

Last year SAE was proud to claim its junior Phi Beta Kappa, Robert Dillard, who graduated as class valedictorian. This year, 1964-65, marked another good year for the chapter. Brothers were active in Red Ribbon Society, German Club, Purple Masque, Choir, Green Ribbon Society, and the Debate Council.

In sports, the chapter was bolstered by football team captain Jim Stewart and by Sewanee's Little All American Dan Davis. Other brothers were active in varsity sports, including a track and a swimming team record holder and an SEC wrestling champ.

Tennessee Omega also boasts of a large number of active alumni living on the Mountain. Their capable leadership coupled with a close, diversified active chapter and strong national affiliation have helped to make the SAE's an outstanding fraternity.

The national fraternity of Sigma Nu was founded on January 1, 1869, at Virginia Military Institute. Brothers James Frank Hopkins, Greenfield Quarles, and James McIlvaine Riley initiated this fraternity which has over 130 national chapters, including 75,000 members. The national magazine of Sigma Nu is the Delta, one of the most outstanding publications of its kind, which was first printed in 1883 by John Alexander Howard.

Beta Omicron chapter of Sigma Nu was founded at Sewanee in 1889. Through the period of the First World War, Beta Omicron experienced dormancy, after which, in 1921, came the second founding of this chapter. Charles Thomas designed and supervised the building of the present lodge in 1927. Extensive renovations were conducted in the summer of 1963, which greatly improved the house while enhancing the social life of the fraternity.

Since its founding, Beta Omicron has produced outstanding alumni in all fields of endeavor. Most recently, former chapter commander John Hines, Bishop of Texas, was elected to the position of Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church. On the campus, Beta Omicron actives have distinguished themselves through the offices of editor of the Cap and Gown, president of the German Club, and through the Student Vestry and the Honor Council.

Continuing in its tradition of excellence, Beta Omicron has had the highest academic average on the Mountain three times in the last four years. In intramural sports the chapter continually improves, as illustrated by having already won the cross-country race this year. In fulfillment of public responsibility, Sigma Nu also prides itself. This year the chapter held its third annual Christmas party for underprivileged children. The chapter has won the Help Week trophy, and this year placed second in the Bloodmobile drive.

Through the aid of the twenty-six pledges picked up during Rush Week, greatly supplementing the chapter's strength, Beta Omicron will continue in excellence.

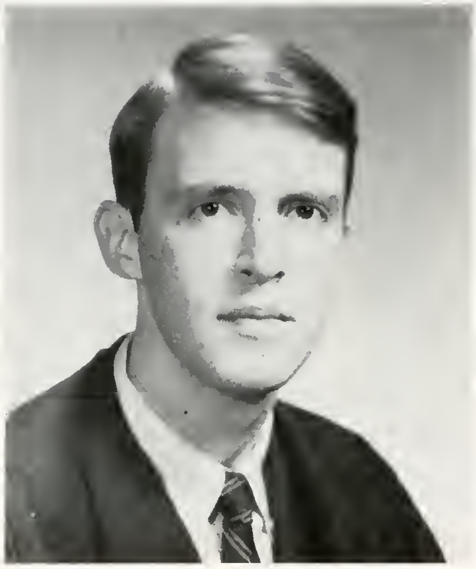
The Association of Independent Men



Joe Johnson
First Semester President

The early University had no fraternities during the first decade, the local literary societies, Pi Omega and Sigma Epsilon, sponsoring entertainments as well as literary events. When the Greek letter fraternities were started at Sewanee by ATO in 1876, they swept the campus. At the turn of the century there were eight fraternities; five Sewanee chapters were the first of their orders to own houses, in a time when chapters on many campuses were forced to remain secret. For a period of three-quarters of a century, the fraternity system at Sewanee enjoyed the almost universal membership of the student body.

The return of the Second World War veterans created a student group which was unaffiliated with any fraternity and, organizing only for athletes, called themselves "the Outlaws." The late Bishop Hunter Wyatt-Brown encouraged the group, holding meetings in his home, and persuaded them to adopt the more respectable designation of "Independents." Dr. Charles Harrison took an active interest in the group in the mid-fifties and a meeting-place was established in lower Magnolia Hall. When all was lost in the 1958 Magnolia fire, the group set up temporary quarters in the vacant DuBose house. Under the leadership of student Dick Vogel, the Independents sought funds to build a house. With generous support from hundreds of Sewanee fraternity alumni, the house was built in 1960.

The purpose of the Independent Men is not to be a non-Greek fraternity, but rather to provide the facilities of a house, intra-mural sports, as well as Party Weekend dances, within the loose framework of its organization.

Inter-Fraternity Competition

Each year upon the arrival on the Mountain, the Greeks prepare for that hectic and enervating week of rush, which is perhaps the inaugural stimulus of their competitory plans for the coming year.

Aside from rushing, intramurals hold down the position of supremacy when it comes to inter-fraternal competition. Each fraternity eagerly strives to be champion of the ten intramural sports, for which each winning group receives a trophy.

Fraternities have the opportunity to accumulate intramural points for being in the top four, in the case of major sports, and the top three in minor sports. At the end of the year, points are totalled and an overall award is bestowed upon the fraternity who has demonstrated intramural superiority. It goes without saying that our intramural program is the source of great interest and spirited competition.

In the fall of the year, fraternities not only compete with one another, but aid their fellow Sewaneeans by filling the blood quota at the Red Cross Bloodmobile. The fraternity possessing the highest percentage of donors is awarded a cash prize, plus ownership of a red plumed fire helmet for the academic year. Later, in the spring, chapters are given a chance to prove their vocal ability by taking part in the Blue Key Sing.

The Leon T. Cheek trophy is awarded each year to one of the most constructive forms of competition among the fraternities, known as "Help Week." This is awarded to the fraternity yielding the most outstanding contributions in the field of Public Service. The Sewanee Woman's Club rewards the chapter that contributes most to a predetermined joint project. "Help Week" is the fraternities' contest toward a better community.

Last, but certainly not least, is the competition of the gentler sex—which is most high year 'round, I might add. Miss Sewanee and Homecoming Queen entries are singled out by each fraternity and selected by faculty judges. Also supplementing the Homecoming queen contest is the rivalry among fraternities for the winning Homecoming float or house decoration.

Organizations

Sewanee means organizations. Although the College has in recent years been characterized as a "hotbed of inactivity," student organizations of all sorts and conditions have flourished here since those nine scholars entered old St. Augustine's Chapel for the first Convocation on September 18, 1868. According to old records the first student group to form officially was Sigma Epsilon, a literary and forensic society founded shortly after the first matriculation. This noble band soon found worthy opposition in Pi Omega, another club with similar aims. The spirited competition between these two societies in the fields of oratory, essay, and debate has become a rich part of the heritage of the present student body. Unfortunately both of these clubs passed out of existence during World War II and have not been revived.

The Order of Gownsmen, that rather apathetic Oxonian transplant which passes for a student government, was founded in 1873 by Chaplain William Porcher DuBose. Since then the OG has assumed responsibility for student affairs in varying degrees, unfortunately seldom attaining more than mediocre effectiveness in recent years. Interest clubs, scholastic honoraries, chief among which is Phi Beta Kappa, musical organizations, leadership and service honoraries, drinking societies, and the Red, Green, and Black Ribbon Societies round out the student organizations.

Order of Gownsmen

The Order of Gownsmen is a unique group among student government organizations. Reflecting by its very name the proud Oxonian tradition in which it directly lies, the Order is for all practical purposes the one body on campus that might be considered student government. Admission to the Order is granted not by popular demand, but by scholastic achievement. Only upperclassmen who have attained a certain standard of academic excellence may wear the gown and be recipients of the privileges that accompany membership in the Order.

The gown is more, however, than a mark of privilege; it is also a symbol of responsibility. Gownsmen are expected to wear their gowns to chapel and to class. To them is left in large part the maintenance of the traditions of honor and gentlemanly conduct that have been the ideal and hallmark of this University since its founding. By precept and by example the wearers of the gown are expected to lead, for it is their voice that speaks for the students to the administration, to the alumni and regents.

This year a new emphasis has been placed on the role of the Order as the official voice of the students. A regular meeting has been set up with the regents, and it is hoped that the dialogue thus established will be helpful in understanding the many problems that beset this growing University.

The Proctors

The proctors are student members of the administration who are responsible for student conduct in the dormitories, dining hall, chapel, and on campus in general. They provide an important link between the administration and the students for solving problems concerning conduct and reporting student opinion on important current campus issues. Each proctor receives a stipend for his work and the responsibility he bears.

The proctors are chosen at the end of each spring semester by the incumbent proctors from rising junior and senior members of the Order of Gownsmen. Election is subject to the approval of the administration. Each is assigned to a dormitory for the upcoming year and chooses an assistant.

The position of proctor is one of some honor and prestige within the campus community. In addition, each proctor has the satisfaction of rendering a useful and important service with the approval of his fellow students and the firm backing of the administration.

Honor Council

The Honor Council in great part provides the conscience of the University. All the divisions of the University are represented on the Council, which is composed of two juniors, two seniors, one sophomore, and one freshman from the College of Arts and Sciences and one representative from each class in the School of Theology. The Council meets only when a violation of the Honor System has been reported. If, having examined a particular case, the Honor Council finds that a violation has in fact occurred, it can recommend to the Dean of the College that the violator be expelled from the University. Final appeals rest with the Vice-Chancellor. Because the Honor System is taken seriously at Sewanee and because each student has incumbent upon him the necessity of enforcing it, the necessity for proctoring exams is eliminated, and each student here achieves a degree of academic and intellectual freedom which would be impossible without an active and effective honor system.

The German Club

The German club, composed of two representatives from each fraternity and from the Association of Independent Men, is a University-sponsored organization which schedules and promotes party weekend dances. Its members are renowned for transforming unpretentious Ormond Simkins gymnasium into a colorful ballroom and for wallowing in the red as a result of their tireless efforts to bring much sought-after recording groups to Sewanee.

During Homecoming Weekend the club sponsored the Otis Redding Revue. Those who attended the Mid-Winters formal, held in spacious Gailor rather than the gymnasium, were entertained by the aggregate forces of the Original Drifters and Atlanta's Peach Tree Strutters. Included in the combination show-dance were 12 instruments and 5 vocalists.

Publications Board

Barney Black, second semester editor of the Purple, and staff look over their first issue.

The publications board is a standing committee whose purpose it is to supervise all student publications. The board endeavors to keep the publications on a sound financial basis, act as a censor when necessary, and approve nominations for the editors of the publications.

All decisions are made by the six faculty members and two elected members, but the editors and business managers of the publications act in an ex-officio capacity. Non-student members are Arthur Ben Chitty, Chairman, Charles O. Baird. Andrew N. Lytle, Maurice A. Moore, Henry F. Arnold, and Arthur Cockett. The junior representative and secretary of the board is Heyward H. Coleman and the senior representative is Josephus C. G. Colmore. Editors are Richard M. Hart, The Sewanee Purple, Mike Speer, THE CAP AND GOWN, and W. Ross Moore, The Mountain Goat. Business Managers are Douglas J. Milne, William R. Gignilliat III, and James A. Koger.

The Cap and Gown had its origin in 1891 when fraternity members put together a paperback edition including fraternity rolls, crests, and an account of the University athletic program.

In 1895 the Cap and Gown appeared for the first time in hardback containing mostly personal articles with little emphasis on organization or team activities. At this time the book was published sporadically, appearing when enough subscriptions were bought to cover printing and expenses. After World War I it has been interrupted only by World War II. Since 1947 the Cap and Gown has appeared annually to provide a valuable resumé of the history of an academic year at Sewanee.

This year's Cap and Gown has been the work of many who have put this book together in the hope of providing you with a few laughs, a look at yourself in 1965, and a lasting record of this year at the University of the South.

Finally, thanks should be given to all those who without official position did more than their share of the work: Elizabeth N. Chitty, who helped with the copy; Bob Stanford, who helped with lay-out; David Brooks, who wrote the material for the introduction and the divider pages; Rick Hart, who read proof; Steve Wilkerson who wrote the dedication; Gerry Poster, who did the drawings for the divider pages; the Publications Board, which took a sympathetic attitude toward our financial troubles.

Mountain Goat

Ross Moore
Editor

This year, the dirty, scandalous, new and improved Mountain Goat was almost a smashing success. With this erudite publication under the new management of a triumvirate of editors, the Mountain has been subjected to three issues of the Goat, instead of the usual measly two. Ross Moore, as editor-in-chief, provided the representative on the Publications Board, as well as giving the church's sanction to the publication through his status as University Crucifier. Gerry Poster, one of the two co-editors and formerly artist-in-residence at St. Mary's, furnished most of the art work and all of the advice. Bob Bailey, the other co-editor and president of the campus "Youth for Stalin" organization, brought the campus literati out of hiding and forced them to contribute to the publication.

Even students liked the magazine this year. It elicited many favorable comments from such varied persons as Va-t-en, Mike Speer, and Rick Hart. Ken Martin, formerly Society Editor of the New Yorker, served as Assistant Editor; Howie Begle, national vice-president of the John Birch Society, as Managing Editor, and Bill Gignilliat, nephew of the famous Billy Sol Estes, served as Business Manager.

The Goat is supposed to be the student literary magazine and was founded by Coleman Harwell and the late John Whitaker in 1925. It continued as a humor magazine until 1938, when it was discontinued. During this time, the Mountain was served by the Helikon, a literary magazine published by Sopherim. The Goat was revived as a variety magazine in 1951 and since then has been a vital force working for the improvement of the moral tone of the school and ever a good influence for cultural betterment up here. It is also used as kindling.

The Sewanee Purple

The Sewanee Purple this year with Rick Hart as its editor and Doug Milne as its business manager has seen a remarkably successful year. Rescued by the intrepid Hart from economic chaos, the paper has proved both fiscally responsible and an excellent mouthpiece for all shades of student opinion—from the Right on page two to the Left on page four. This year, also, the Purple has more than ever served as a mouthpiece for the students, because for the first time in several years it has been sent to regents, trustees, and a significant number of alumni.

Founded in 1892 by the Rev. Louis Tucker of Mobile, the Purple is the worthy successor to such campus publications as the University Record, the Sewanee Times, and the Tiger. The paper is run by and for the students, and it is not subject to prior censorship. Editors are called upon at times to defend articles of questionable taste, but this is seldom necessary, and the Purple carries on meaningful dialogue between the students and the administration.

Brinley Rhys
Director of the Purple Masque

Purple Masque

While it is true that no one seems to know when or how the PURPLE MASQUE came into existence, it is equally true that no one can remember a time when there was not a PURPLE MASQUE at Sewanee. Down through the years, it has been one of the few student organizations which has consistently served the interests of both the students and the community.

Membership in the PURPLE MASQUE is determined by points awarded according to merit and is divided into two categories. At present, there are fifteen active members and more than fifty apprentice members. Through a relatively flexible organization, the PURPLE MASQUE has always had a strong nucleus of students with a respectable amount of experience in the theatre and has been directed by a member of the faculty whose ability and background have qualified him for the job.

For more than ten years, the director has been Dr. Brinley Rhys. His guidance and dedication have been largely responsible for the PURPLE MASQUE'S continued existence as a vital student organization, and the debt owed him by the Sewanee community is incalculable. Unfortunately, the demands made upon his time by a growing family have obliged him to make this his last year as the director of the PURPLE MASQUE. His place will be taken next fall by C. Warren Robertson, who is coming to Sewanee as an instructor in English.

Pi Sigma Alpha

Pi Sigma Alpha is the national political science honor society. The Gamma Sigma Chapter was established at the University of the South in 1958. The society receives into membership students of all departments regardless of their membership in other social or honorary fraternities when such students attain high standards of scholarship and academic distinction in both political science and in the whole of their academic work. A limited number of honorary memberships, based on attainments in public service, are awarded to persons in civic or governmental life.

Sigma Pi Sigma

Sigma Pi Sigma is a national honor society whose objectives are awarding distinction to students having high scholarship and promise of achievement in physics promoting student interest in research and the advanced study of this science, as well as bringing students and professors in close association.

The University of the South Chapter of Sigma Pi Sigma was installed in May, 1956, with a total of twenty-four charter members. Present chapter membership is over forty-five active and alumni members.

Hononary Fraternities

Phi Beta Kappa

Phi Beta Kappa was founded on December 5, 1776, at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia. It was the first society to have a Greek letter name, and with its beginning the basic characteristics of all such societies were introduced: secrecy oath (now abandoned), a badge, mottoes in Greek and Latin, a code of laws, an elaborate form of initiation, a seal, and a grip. Regular meetings were held at which the emphasis was placed on literary exercises. Social meetings were also held and the celebration of anniversaries. Many of these gatherings were held in the Apollo Room of the Raleigh Tavern in Williamsburg.

There are 160 chapters today, with a membership of over 141,000. Beta of Tennessee at the University of the South became the second chapter in the state and the one hundred and first in the nation with its formation in 1926.

Omicron Delta Kappa

Omicron Delta Kappa, leadership honor society for men, was founded at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia, December 3, 1914. The founders conceived of a fraternity that recognized all-round leadership, representing men in all phases of college life which should cooperate in worthwhile endeavor and meet with mutual interest, understanding, and helpfulness.

Omicron Delta Kappa was the first college honor society of national scope to accord recognition and honor for meritorious leadership and service in extracurricular activities and to encourage the development of general campus citizenship. The emphasis for membership is placed on the development of the well-rounded man and high academic proficiency. The five major phases of campus life that the society recognizes and honors are: scholarship, athletics, social and religious affairs, publications, and speech, music, and dramatic arts.

AMONG STUDENTS
IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES

Who's Who

At each college in North America there are a number of those students whose integrity and ability serve to develop and uphold the principles on which these schools stand. Having as their aim recognition of these students, a group of men in 1934 began to publish Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Today more than six hundred fifty colleges and universities in the United States and Canada are annually represented in this "atlas of collegiate leadership." Sewanee's nominations for Who's Who are made by the executive committe of the Order of Gownsmen. This committee selects students on personal character, academic excellence, and extracurricular achievement.

Blue Key

Blue Key was founded in 1923 at the University of Florida. It is a national honor fraternity composed of those men who have exemplified exceptional leadership ability and high character. Membership is determined in the fall and in the spring of the academic year on the criterion of scholarship, athletic achievement, and participation in student affairs. In addition, a candidate for membership must display a potential for future growth.

Blue Key sponsors a number of major activities at Sewanee among which are the Inter-Fraternity Blue Key Sing, the Homecoming Queen Contest, and the intramural All-Star football game. By collecting outstanding students into a single organization, which can then work for the best interest of Sewanee, the fraternity serves a valuable purpose in campus life.

Jazz Society

The Sewanee Jazz Society was founded in 1958 by a group of students and faculty members interested in promoting the appreciation of modern jazz at Sewanee. Since then, it has grown in leaps and bounds, bringing people from all over the South to its concerts.

The concerts are usually sponsored on party weekends when everyone is able to attend. The Jazz Society is a non-profit making organization, interested in promoting jazz to the students and people of Sewanee.

Past features of the Sewanee Jazz Society have been: Louis Armstrong and his All-Stars, the Dave Brubeck Quartet, the Jimmy Guiffre Trio, the Modern Jazz Quartet, the Mose Allison Trio, the Julian "Cannonball" Adderly Sextet, and this year, exciting jazz organist Brother Jack McDuff and his Quartet. It is these people who have made the Sewanee Jazz Society a success.

Sopherim

Sopherim, the main purpose of which has been to bring together students interested in literature and creative writing, has been a functioning body at Sewanee since 1904. It initiated the national student literary fraternity Sigma Upsilon, now defunct.

This year the organization has seen something of a revival. Dr. William Campbell, a former member of Sigma Upsilon at Davidson, agreed to help with the revival, and Sopherim has gained in importance and relevance as well as membership.

The Wellingtons

The Wellington Society is based allegorically on the medieval feudal representation in merry ol' England whereby the most noble peers of the realm make up the House of Lords; in its Sewanee-type adaptation, the organization draws its membership from the various fraternal groups and otherwise. In keeping with our English forebearers, we try on the one hand to maintain an air of pompous dignity while exhibiting a touch of regal high spirit.

Our administrative structure is headed by the Earl of Rembart, and Prime Minister, Henry Carrison; our spiritual guidance entrusted in the Archlushup of Candinbury, the more than Reverend Michael Bailey; and our demesnes overseen by Chancellor of the Exchequer and Keeper of the Privy Seal, Tommy Roland.

Although the very existence of the Wellingtons was threatened earlier this year by an invasion from out of the Northern provinces led by the Black Duke of Beanland, we executed the vulgar villain to the tune of "God Save the Queen from Bean."

Los Peones

According to vicious rumor and sheer hearsay, Los Peones were formed under a charter from Isabella to bring the New World a bit of the Old World Culture and charm.

The trip over was so harrowing that they rested at Tortilla Flats until 1948 when they moved headquarters to the Mountain. From that day to this, they have done an admirable job of keeping alive the spirit and tradition of the Spanish-speaking nations. Garbed in serapes and sombreros, Los Peones provide some of the most colorful of Sewanee's local color.

Contrary to the opinions of the Wellingtons and Highlanders, the Peones maintain that they are an officially organized social group.

The Highlanders

Once again the colorful Highlanders wound up a successful year on the Mountain. The first get-together of the Scotsmen got under way Millsaps weekend at the KA house with a beer bust after the team's first victory. Homecoming was the second highlight of the fall season which featured a Highlander party at the ATO house. Members and their dates were entertained by a local band and the usual refreshments were served at the bar. Austin weekend was the final celebration of the first semester. This time the kiltsmen gathered at the Kappa Sig House for the festivities around their bar room.

Midwinters, Spring weekend, and Commencement rounded out the year for the Sewanee Scotsmen.

University Choir

The University Choir is directed by Mr. Joseph M. Running, Organist and Choirmaster, and is composed of men in the College of Arts and Sciences who enjoy singing for the glory of God. The main function of this 70-voice group is to lead the congregation in the daily and Sunday chapel services, but the Choir is active in many other areas.

The annual Festival of Lessons and Carols, celebrated the Sunday before Christmas holidays, is an important part of Christmas at Sewanee; the Choir of course participates in this and also decorates All Saints' Chapel for the service. The touring group of the Choir presents a festival choral evensong at St. Paul's Church in Chattanooga during the last week of school before the Christmas holidays and this year went to Nashville to sing at Christ Church as well.

Each year the members of this organization give up their spring holidays to go on tour. In the past these tours have gone through Florida, the Midwest, and up the eastern seaboard, but this year these men made a Southwestern tour.

Besides these activities, several exchange concerts usually take place with the choirs of some of the women's colleges in the Southeast. In May the Choir goes to Emory University in Atlanta, where Sewanee has been invited to sing at the annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Musical Conference. The commencement program will end the year's activities for this busy group.

Young Democrats

The Young Democrats have been unusually active this year, being involved like everyone in the heat of the campaign. Campaign chairman Doug Thoresen and local politico Dit Talley helped in getting out the vote that carried Franklin County for the President.

Our oratorical stars, Henry Stokes and John Friedel, won an undisputed victory in the debate, although we suffered an expected set-back in the campus straw vote. John Jay Hooker, a Sewanee alumnus and a promising new figure on the Tennessee political scene, spoke to the Young Democrats on the campaign.

A nod of thanks goes to our co-tenants on this page, whose presence certainly helped galvanize our usually lethargic membership into active participation.

Young Republicans

The Sewanee Young Republican Organization is a conservatively oriented political group dedicated to the preservation of Constitutional government, private enterprise, and individual freedom in the United States. The organization was established this year as an active Republican campaign unit. It's members staged political promotions and registration drives both on campus and in outlying Franklin County areas in conjunction with the county Senior Republican Party.

In the interim between now and the next election, the group will remain a functioning Republican organ.

Debate Council

The Sewanee Debate Council found itself composed of eight freshmen for the 1964-65 debate season. Lack of experience was hard to avoid, therefore, for the debaters who entered varsity and novice competition, gaining the ability to hold their own against familiar and unfamiliar rivals. The one veteran on hand was, rightly enough, Mr. Ralph Marsh, who coached the team and taught speech as well. He has presided over the Debate Council for the last two years and has traveled thousands of miles to insure Sewanee's representation at tournaments. Mr. Marsh completed his studies at the School of Theology this year. Evidence of diversified competition was the Debate Council's trips to Emory, Spring Hill, Howard, Johns Hopkins, Duke and Agnes Scott, and sponsorship of the Tennessee state contest here in February.

English Speaking Union

On the first Monday of each month from October to May, Mrs. George Boggan Myers opens the doors of Bairnwick to the Hudson Stuck Chapter of the English-Speaking Union for high tea.

The group is entertained by talks on some aspect of Anglo-American affairs. This year there were several exceptionally interesting meetings commemorating the 400th anniversary of William Shakespeare. Dr. Charles T. Harrison spoke on Shakespearean style in the major plays, and the Rev. William H. Ralston presented Verdi's rendering into music of three of Shakespeare's plays.

The English-Speaking Union was founded in Sewanee by Dr. George Herbert Clarke, then editor of The Sewanee Review and head of the English department, and Miss Sada Elliott. The Hudson Stuck Chapter, named for the Archdeacon of the Yukon. met for years in the home of Dr. William Haskell DuBose.

The aim of this organization is to draw together in the bond of comradeship the English-Speaking peoples of the world.

Pre-Law Association

The Pre-Law Association of the University of the South is an organization maintaining as its goal the bringing together of those upperclassmen professing an interest in law careers. Although it is exclusively a student organization, both in membership and in operation, it also has one faculty adviser, Dr. Robert L. Keele. Its student officers this year were Fran Bass, president, Thomas Eamon, secretary, and Robert Howell, treasurer.

As one of the more active and more sizeable organizations on campus, it enjoys several major functions each year. The Association gave a barbeque in December and a banquet in the spring, at both of which it had guest speakers. The association is quite active in bringing to the Mountain professors from various law schools to discuss with those interested in legal careers the vital link between college and the legal profession.

Volunteer Fire Department

The Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department is a voluntary service organization composed of university students. Strictly serious, these students play an important role in safeguarding the lives and property of the residents of Sewanee.

The Department, under the leadership of Chief Jim Thames, is composed of Red and Blue teams. The latter group is composed of the more experienced members of the Department. It is they who actually enter the fire. The Red team supervises, controls the crowd, and gives any extra help that the Blue Team requires.

The Volunteers have two trucks at their disposal. One is radio-equipped and carries a total of five hundred feet of hose. Both the trucks and firefighters have plenty of knowledge through weekly drills that are held to promote efficiency and cooperation.

Acolyte Guild

The Acolyte Guild at Sewanee plays an important part in the life of the University, and is composed of about fifty students of the College of Arts and Sciences. It exists principally for the purpose of giving practical experience and opportunity to participate in the various religious services in All Saints' Chapel. Members of the Guild serve in all the college services held in All Saints' during the school year (over seven hundred, by one estimate). In past years, the Guild has also sponsored a milk fund drive for the benefit of the colored children of the community and backed several other charitable movements on the Mountain.

Student Vestry

The Student Vestry, an elected committee of the Order of Gownsmen, is the advisory board of the religious life of the University.

In order to coordinate the religious life of the University community, the Student Vestry works in close cooperation with the Chaplain, meeting with him once a month. The Student Vestry sponsors various activities throughout the year such as the Lenten program, the Inquirer's Class, and the conferences with Morehouse College. Last year the Vestry sponsored a student committee to study the Church University and make recommendations to the University according to their studies. The Student Vestry also handles the finances of All Saints' and St. Augustine's Chapels and supports participation in Canterbury conferences and other similar activities.

Waiters' Guild

Members of the Waiters' Guild serve the student body at all meals in Gailor Dining Hall. The Guild is composed entirely of students, who work three meals a day, serving twenty-four students. The membership is limited, and selection is based on financial need and personal character.

The student waiter is responsible for setting up his assigned tables with food, waiting on the students, and clearing off the table completely. It is his duty to cater to the students' every need, and this he does with the maximum of efficiency.

The Guild is led by Head Waiter Bill Gosnell, and Associate Head Waiter Reginald Daves, who organize and supervise the assignments of the student waiters.

Sewanee Chapel Guides

The Sewanee Chapel Guides were formed in 1961 with the Historiographer of the University as advisor. The need for such a group of interested and well-informed students had been made increasingly apparent by the sharply rising number of visitors to the University. It is the function of the Chapel Guides to show these visitors around, particularly in All Saints' Chapel. Membership is restricted to approximately a dozen students who are expected to have a very intense and detailed understanding of the history of the University. Upon becoming Verger, the Rev. Ellis M. Bearden took charge of the Chapel Guides in the fall of 1962 serving not only as advisor but providing a rich source of intimate information about life in Sewanee for a period spanning forty years.

Sewanee Forestry Club

The Sewanee Forestry Club was organized in 1959 with the purpose of stimulating an active interest in the enjoyment of outdoor life and to promote a better interest and understanding of the profession of forestry. Active membership is open to all who profess a sincere interest in the club's ideals. The facilities of the club include a club room in the Snowden Forestry Building and a log cabin situated on a lake with a scenic overlook of the valley. The activities of the club include several parties and cook-outs at the cabin and numerous movies pertaining to forestry or conservation.

Le Cercle Français

Le Cercle Français se réunit dans la cave de Guerry par intervalles spasmodiques. On y trouve des divertissements très variés—des projections de transparences, des représentations de pièces modernes, des conférences divers, etc. Ces réunions présentent à l'étudiant l'occasion d'entendre et de pratiquer le français oral hors de la salle de classe. Les divertissements organisés sont suivis d'une période de conversation facilitée par le vin. Tout le monde est donc libre de parler comme il peut et comme il veut. Selon une tradition célèbre, chaque année se termine par une grande fête gastronomique tout à fait française. Les officiers sont:

Conseiller—M. le docteur Wilson-Jones; Président—Dan Griffith; Vice-Président—John Carey; Trésorier—Tom Northup.

Der Deutsche Verein

Dieses Jahr, unter die Führung von Jody Nicholas, Präsidenten, und Ned Rowe, Vice-Präsidenten, soll der Deutsche Verein seröser werden als sonst. Das meint gewiss nicht, dass die Mitglieder die getrauten alten Lieder vernachlässigen werden, oder dass sie nicht ab und zu, ein Löwenbräukrug in der Hand, einen "Prosit der Gemütlichkeit" lustig werden klingen lassen. Aber auch verschiedene erbauliche Pläne hat der Verein projektiert: Programme, zum Beispiel, über solcher Gegenstände wie: "Die Geographie Deutschlands," "Das Leben einer amerikanischken Studenten in Deutschland," "Die Trennungsmauer zwischen Osten und Westen," "Deutsche Schriftsteller von heeute," u. s. w. Auf dieser Weise wird der Verein versuchen, den Problemen unserer deutschen, österreichischen und schweizerischen Zeitgenossen näher zu kommen und gleichzeitig die deutsche Sprache so viel wie möglich zu gebrauchen.

University Band

The University Band, under the very able leadership of student-director Robert Van Doren, is composed of twenty-five students who perform and practice for their love of music. The Band played at all football games and several basketball contests. One of the highlights of the football season was the trip to St. Louis to see Sewanee whip the Washington University team.

The Band is a non-marching one in which rank and file are unknown—words which even during the Homecoming Parade lead to the conclusion that this organization is principally for concerts. The Band plays mainly classical and semi-classical music and will this year perform at the annual Blue Key Sing.

Air Force R.O.T.C.

This year marked the end of an old era and the beginning of a new one for the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps.

The old era ended in October, 1964, with the enactment of Public Law 88-647, "The Reserve Officers Training Corps Vitalization Act." This act retained the basic AFROTC mission of producing Air Force officers of appropriate quality to meet the requirements of the aerospace age but changed significantly the methods by which this mission will be accomplished. A new emphasis is being placed on enrolling in the program primarily those students who are interested in the Aerospace Studies curricula and in achieving a commission as an Air Force Reserve Officer.

AFROTC related activities such as the Arnold Air Society, Sabre Drill Team, Flight Instruction Program, and orientation flights to Air Force bases will continue. Some of the highlights for this year's cadets were the Arnold Air Society's formal Dining-In; the Sabre Drill Team's participation in Mardi Gras at Mobile, and the orientation flights to a Titan Intercontinental Ballistic Missile Wing and to the Air Force Museum. Also, nine of this year's thirteen senior cadets successfully completed the Flight Instruction Program and received their licenses as private pilots.

Sewanee means athletics. At a school where athletics are supposedly "de-emphasized," the varsity teams have compiled records of 33-11 for the first two-thirds of the year. Included among the facilities are two gymnasiums, an indoor swimming pool, three indoor tennis courts, three football fields, a new baseball field, a rifle range, and a nine hole golf course, the total value of which exceeds $1.5 million. The University competes in nine varsity sports, with a tenth in the offing for next year, and over 50 per cent of the student body participates in at least one of the 12 intramural sports.

Highest Scoring Team Since 1899

Tiger head coach Shirley Majors talks to his captains, John Semmer and Ray Tucker (standing), Frank Stubblefield and Wilbur Wood (kneeling), and Jim Stewart (sitting with the CAC Trophy).

The Sewanee football team came horribly close to repeating the 1963 undefeated season, but after 14 in a row, six this year, they were stopped by a fired-up Washington and Lee team 11-6 at the Generals' homecoming in Lexington.

Even at that, with several key men unable to play because of injuries, the Tigers came back to win their final two games. First came an upset 25-19 victory over Washington University, and then the finale, 49-0 over Austin.

To go along with their 8-1 record, the Tigers gained a share of the College Athletic Conference title (which they won outright last season) with Washington, placed 4 men on the All-Conference team, were considered for a bowl bid, and were one of the leading small college teams in the nation in scoring, averaging 33.9 points per game.

The Tigers scored 305 points, becoming the first Sewanee team since 1899 to score that many. It was the 1899 team which won 12 straight, including five in six days over larger schools. They also extended the winning streak to 14 games, the second longest in the school's history.

Thirteen seniors dotted this squad which certainly has to rank with one of the finest in Sewanee's history. The guard position was the richest in seniors with four—Jim Stewart, Danny Thornton, Price Stone, and Jim Wright. There were three ends—Frank Stubblefield, Jack Sanders and Jo Colmore, tackle Wilbur Wood and center Bill Bertrand to complete the line. In the backfield were Harrell Harrison, Dan Davis, Ray Tucker and John Semmer. The coaches paid some very high tributes to these boys for their play and for their leadership, and they were a major reason why the Tigers won 16 out of 17 over the past two seasons.

The Tigers were a real question mark at the beginning of the season. There were 17 lettermen returning, but six key men had been lost from the 1963 squad. The schedule was tougher and longer, and every team the Tigers played would be aiming at their winning streak.

Few questions were answered in the opening game. The Tigers ran over Millsaps 54-7, but the Majors were unprepared and generally weak. Sewanee converted break after break into touchdowns, the most dramatic coming when guard Jim Stewart grabbed a fumble and ran 80 yards for a touchdown. Millsaps never scored until the Tigers had run up a 54-0 lead.

Tailback Harrell Harrison was the team's leading ground gainer with 93 yards in 20 carries, including two touchdowns. Stewart was the outstanding lineman of the week. The game was really no test for the Tigers as they took it easy and the reserves played most of the second half.

Sewanee's next opponent would provide the test, as Hampden-Sydney had its best team in several years, and the Virginia Tigers would be anxious to avenge a 49-0 licking at the hands of Sewanee last season. This would be a key game for both teams as each was looking forward to it as the springboard for a good year.

A typical Sewanee defensive effort is shown in a gang tackle by Dave Paschall (48), Dale Reich (38), and Paul Tessmann (36) in the second quarter of the Austin game. Ready to assist if needed are Doug Paschall (88) and Ray Tucker (45).

Jo Colmore grabs an 18-yard pass for a first down in the 49-0 victory over Austin.

Sewanee scored early in the second quarter, and then repelled an H-S threat at the Sewanee four yard line late in the half. That was the turning point at the Tennessee Tigers put the game away in the second half.

To be more truthful, it was Bill Johnson who put it away as he broke loose for runs of 26 and 59 yards in the third quarter to put Sewanee ahead 21-0. Whitey Lipscomb, the H-S quarterback, returned a punt 71 yards for the Virginians' only score, but the Tigers came right back and marched 61 yards for their final touchdown in the 28-6 win.

Johnson was the outstanding player as he rolled up 159 yards in 19 carries to pace the Tiger victory. Tackle Wilbur Wood led the defense which repelled Hampden-Sydney at every turn, and he also did an excellent job on offense. This game did answer a few questions as the Tigers proved that they were going to be tough to stop.

Sewanee's next game came against outmanned Kenyon, and this was no contest from the start. Johnson picked off a pass and went 51 yards for a touchdown with the game only two minutes old, and the Tigers really never had to put out. The coaches substituted liberally at the beginning.

It was a big day for end Jack Sanders, who, as one of only three ends the Tigers had on the trip, had to play both ends on both offense and defense whenever needed. And he also caught three passes for 115 yards to set up three Tiger touchdowns. Throwing to him was freshman tailback Charlie Gignilliat, who provided the coaches with a preview of his ability as he guided the team to two touchdowns in the final six minutes to make the final margin 41-7.

THE RECORD

Sewanee	54	Millsaps	7

Sewanee	6	Washington & Lee	11
Sewanee	25	Washington	19
Sewanee	49	Austin	0
	305	(8-1-0)	63

Charlie Gignilliat goes over the top for Sewanee's winning touchdown in the upset of Washington University. Blockers are Don Upton (76) and Sam Ladd (62). Charlie scored twice and passed for a third TD here.

Dan Davis, who played tailback and linebacker, was named the outstanding back because of his work both ways. Harrison was again the leading ground gainer with 76 yards in 16 carries, but the Tigers had five men in all see action at tailback.

Sewanee then made its second journey into Virginia, and again Johnson had a field day. He rolled up 143 yards in 11 carries this time and scored twice. But it was also a big day for senior quarterback John Semmer, who scored the first touchdown of his career. He did an outstanding job as a blocker and signal caller in leading the Tiger offense.

The Tigers led 18-0 at the half, and Randolph-Macon's only sustained drive of the game came when they received the second half kickoff and drove 69 yards to score. Sewanee picked up two more touchdowns before the Jackets got their final score on a 28-yard run with a fumble. The final margin was 34-13.

Wood also enjoyed this second journey into Virginia as he was the outstanding lineman of the game. It was Sewanee's first real test on a muddy field in two years, and the Tigers passed it with flying colors. They rolled up 212 yards on the ground and another 165 in the air as Johnson and Tucker each scored twice.

Sewanee, after those three straight wins on the road, finally returned home to face two College Athletic Conference foes, beginning with Centre at homecoming.

The Colonels were up for this one as they wanted to halt Sewanee's winning streak at 12, and for the first half, they played the Tigers dead even. Only Johnson's 75-yard punt return in the second quarter, called by Majors the finest run he had ever seen, had put the Tigers on the scoreboard.

Sewanee exploded for three touchdowns in the third quarter, however, to put the game away. The Tigers finally won 34-0, with Johnson having his best day, scoring three times, once on the punt return, once on a one-yard run, and once on a six-yard pass from Gignilliat. He also passed for a score to Dale Reich while picking up 81 yards in 15 carries.

Stewart was again the outstanding lineman, his big play coming when he hauled down a Centre player, who had just intercepted a flat pass, from behind at the Tiger 29. He turned in an outstanding performance both on offense and defense.

The following week Southwestern invaded the Mountain, and the Lynx were an even tougher nut to crack. Again Johnson rolled up the yardage, 175 in 24 carries, mostly in the first three periods, but it was all in Sewanee territory. His only score came on a 43-yard run early in the game which had put the Tigers ahead 7-0, while for the remainder of the time the Lynx maintained excellent field position and held the Tigers at bay.

Tailback Harrell Harrison starts to turn the corner against Millsaps in his best game of the year. Dave Paschall (48) and Ray Tucker (45) lead the way.

Bruce Mulkey (foreground) breaks through to block a Southwestern punt, which Dan Davis later fell on for a touchdown. Sam Ladd is the man leaping over the Lynx blocker. The Tigers converted breaks into four last period touchdowns in this one.

But late in the third quarter, the turning point came. Southwestern had a fourth-and-one situation near midfield, and they decided to go for the yardage. Linebacker Paul Tessmann broke through and nailed the Lynx back behind the line of scrimmage, and the Tigers had the ball in good field position for the first time all day.

The result was a four touchdown barrage in the fourth quarter which buried the Lynx 34-0. Gignilliat passed to Johnson for one score and to Sanders for another, and then Bruce Mulkey blocked a punt which Davis fell on in the end zone for six points. Finally Harrison hit Doug Paschall with a 37-yard pass for the closing touchdown.

Sanders was named the outstanding lineman for his work on defense and his punt coverage, which was excellent. Davis, as usual, turned another consistent performance at linebacker and was named the outstanding back. The Tiger defense simply held on until the offense could get rolling, but the game was much closer than the final score indicated.

Bill Johnson, with Ray Tucker leading the way, shows Centre why he was among the top scorers among the nation's small college backs. He scored 86 points this season, 18 of them in this game.

Next came the game that Sewanee would rather forget. Washington and Lee was the villain, and the Generals simply walked all over Sewanee. They had scored in only two previous games, and their performances before that fatal Saturday had been anywhere from mediocre to poor.

But they got ready for Sewanee, and the Tigers were not ready. The defense held on several occasions, but the Generals finally cracked through with 20 seconds left in the first half for a 6-0 lead. Johnson tied the game immediately with a 94-yard kickoff return, but that was the only thing resembling an offense the Tigers generated all day.

W&L took the second half kickoff and marched down to the nine before they were stopped, and this time they got a field goal for a 9-6 lead. Eating up the clock with long marches, they never gave Sewanee a chance, and a fourth quarter safety concluded the scoring and gave the Generals their 11-6 win. It was the end of a 14-game winning streak, and the Tigers never really knew what hit them.

Not only did they lose the game, but six men were lost because of injuries. Three of them didn't even make the trip to Washington, and the others were slowed and could only see very limited action. Gone were Stewart, Davis and Phil Condra, and Wood and Price Stone played very little against the highly-favored Battling Bears.

Washington had been pointing for Sewanee for some time, and they wanted to please the 8,400 fans who had turned out for their homecoming. A win would virtually wrap up the CAC title for them, and they had a much better running game than Washington and Lee. With the Tiger line already weakened by injuries, the Bears figured to run right over it.

Well, they did succeed somewhat in that. They rolled up 235 yards on the ground, and they put together three sustained drives. But the Tigers had a few surprises in store. Don Upton recovered a Bear fumble at their 28 early in the game, and Gignilliat, a surprise starter, moved the team in to score in seven plays.

Washington then launched two sustained drives, but all they got out of it was one field goal as the Sewanee defense dug in time and time again when the pressure was on. Then Gignilliat unloaded with a 71-yard pass play to Doug Paschall and the Tigers led 13-3 at the half.

The second half was a see-saw battle. Washington scored twice, but in between was a 95-yard kickoff return by Ray Tucker, so when the Bears hit on a pass for a two point conversion after their second touchdown, it made the score 19-19. There were a little over eight minutes remaining, and the Tigers took the ball 75 yards for a touchdown.

Bill Johnson rips off a few of the 159 yards he gained in the win over Hampden-Sydney.

John Semmer finds himself in an unusual situation—running the ball, as he turns the corner against Kenyon. Leading the way is Dan Davis (35).

In spite of the mud, it was still a good afternoon. Ray Tucker walks off the field after the Tigers had spoiled Randolph-Macon's homecoming. Tucker scored twice and played a fine defensive game.

Undaunted, Gignilliat moved the team steadily down the field. He broke loose for a 35-yard run, hit Doug Paschall with an 18-yard pass on a key fourth down play, and finally scored himself from one yard out for the winning tally in the upset.

With that one out of the way, the Tigers still had to face the number two passing team among the nation's small colleges in Austin, and they were still crippled. But the stage was set when Tessmann intercepted its first pass of the game and returned it to the Kangaroo 13-yard line. Sewanee hit the Hoppers hard from the start and the result was evident—a 28-0 halftime lead and a 49-0 victory. It was the first time the Kangaroos had been shutout since 1961, and the man largely responsible was Tessmann. He intercepted three passes and made numerous tackles in what Majors called the finest individual effort he had ever seen.

Despite the loss to Washington and Lee, it was a very successful season. 16 wins in 17 games is nothing to be ashamed of, and this team certainly had to overcome many handicaps. Injuries plagued the boys from the start; so much, in fact, that Majors called it his worst year in that respect.

They also had to face the fact that almost every team they played, especially the teams in the CAC, had built their season around one game — Sewanee. Everybody was up for the Tigers week-in and week-out, and it finally caught up with them. But they certainly deserve a tremendous amount of credit for their comeback, in the face of almost insurmountable odds, to win their final two games. The 13 graduating seniors, and the entire squad, could be proud of their performance.

Basketball

The Sewanee basketball team, though winding up its season on a sour note by losing two games in the College Athletic Conference tournament, certainly put together a successful season, the third best since Lon Varnell began coaching in 1948.

The Tigers wound up 13-7 against a schedule which included 13 road games, four games against Southeastern Conference teams, two tournaments, and a host of old rivals. Among this team's accomplishments were two wins over Mississippi, the first over an SEC team since 1955 and first ever on the road, the Citrus Invitational tournament title, and consideration for a berth in the NCAA small college tournament.

The month of December was the most profitable for the cagers as they won six of seven games, five on the road, losing only to mighty Tennessee. First came Centre, and the Colonels fell 76-64 as Kentuckians Corky Grant (18) and Larry Cunningham (15) paced the Tiger scorers.

Next came the Citrus tourney, and the Tigers whipped Rollins 76-60 to move into the finals against host Florida Southern, which had beaten Sewanee in this same tournament in three overtimes three years before. This time the Tigers grabbed an early lead, fell behind, then came back in the second half to win 61-54. Tom Ward was named the Most Valuable Player of the meet as he scored 36 points and grabbed 21 rebounds in the two games. Bob Swisher, with 39 points, was also named to the All-Tourney team.

Tennessee took Sewanee apart as expected and won 77-42, but the Tigers did not do a bad job against all that height. Next came Ole Miss, and after coming close for two straight years, this time the Tigers were not to be denied. They led almost the entire game in posting a 74-62 win in their only home game of the month of December. Ward paced the attack with 22 against his home-state university while Sandy Lumpkin pulled in 19 rebounds.

Bob Swisher goes up for two of the 32 points he managed in the 95-88 loss to Centre in the consolation game of the CAC tournament. It was the high individual performance by any Tiger of the year and the highest total of Swisher's three-year career here.

Corky Grant drives in for a lay-up against Southwestern in the CAC tournament at St. Louis. Action came in the first half of the 65-55 loss.

Sandy Lumpkin tries his patented jump shot against Millsaps. He led the team in field goal percentage with 74 of 141 for .504.

Larry Cunningham completes a perfect offensive pattern by hitting a lay-up in the first half against Birmingham-Southern. In the right corner is Jim Varnell.

On the trip to Mississippi the Tigers ran into a fired-up Millsaps team and barely won 74-68 the night before the return match with Ole Miss. Trailing 43-40 in this one with three minutes to play, Sewanee came back to whip the Rebs again 46-44 to wind up the month of December in fine style.

Coming back after Christmas Sewanee opened with an easy 99-76 win over Livingston, and they then put on what was probably their finest performance of the season. Georgia Tech was the foe, and Atlanta fans, including about 100 Sewanee alumni, were quite surprised with the ability and hustle displayed by the Tigers who made a contest of the game for 30 of the 40 minutes. The final score was 84-71, and Ward pulled in 13 rebounds and scored 22 points, two more in each category than gained by Tech's All-SEC center 6-10 Jim Caldwell.

Southwestern was next to fall as the Tigers remained unbeaten at home, 82-66. Then came the two disappointing losses to Birmingham-Southern (62-58), and David Lipscomb (63-31 in overtime) on the road.

After a three-week layoff for finals the Tigers won three in a row at home. Lipscomb was beaten 80-68 in a revenge match, Lambuth fell 65-55 in a cold-shooting game for both teams, and Millsaps, in a farce, lost 68-37. Trailing 45-18 with about four minutes to play in the first half, the Majors came out in a stall and stayed in it for the remainder of the game.

Next came the annual swing to West Tennessee for the games with Southwestern and Lambuth, and both were hard-fought contests. The Tigers whipped Southwestern for the second time, 66-62, but couldn't quite come back the following afternoon as Lambuth, playing before a homecoming crowd, gained a 68-63 win. Finally the Tigers preserved their unbeaten record at home by edging a surprisingly improved Birmingham - Southern outfit 75-73 in overtime. That left Sewanee with a 13-5 record going into the CAC tournament at St. Louis.

The tournament was a disappointment to all concerned, and it dimmed what was in every other respect an outstanding season. For the second year in a row the Tigers were faced with the task of beating rival Southwestern for the third time, and again they could not do it. It was one of those games where nothing went right, especially in the second half when the Lynx outscored the Tigers 32-25 to provide the margin for their 65-55 win. Only the shooting of Tom Ward, who scored 24, kept Sewanee in the game as it was the first time all year the Tigers had only one man in double figures.

In the consolation game the Tigers started off as if they were going to run Centre out of the gym, jumping off to an 18-5 lead. They led 45-33 at the half, but the Colonels fought back to send the game into two overtimes and eventually won 95-88. The loss placed Sewanee fourth in the CAC. It came in spite of outstanding performances by the two Tiger guards as Swisher scored 32 and Cunningham 20. Ward was named to the All-CAC team.

The final statistics revealed Ward and Swisher as the leaders in most categories. Tom wound up with 312 points, seven more than Swisher, and their respective averages were 15.6 and 15.3. Larry Cunningham (12.0) and Corky Grant (10.2) also wound up in double figures. Ward also led in rebounding with 227 for an 11.4 average while Lumpkin was second with 156. Lumpkin and reserve forward Jim Varnell, both four-year lettermen, are the only seniors on this team which returns four starters and nine lettermen for next year.

Swimming

The Sewanee swimmers waded through a tough schedule for a 7-2 record, losing only to powerful Alabama (57-38) and undefeated Eastern Kentucky (48-47). Included among the Tiger victims were Vanderbilt, Tulane and Kentucky of the Southeastern Conference, independent powers Louisville and Georgia Tech, and Emory and Union of Kentucky.

Al Sherer paced the team in scoring with 69¼ points as he broke the school record in the 200-yard freestyle against Alabama in 1:54.1 and also bettered his own school record in the 500 freestyle by 28 seconds against Eastern Kentucky but failed to take first place and thus have the official new school record. He anchored the 400-yard freestyle relay team which was directly responsible for the victory over Tulane and which also set a record against Eastern Kentucky of 3:31.5.

Freshman John Turpit was the number two scorer, and he broke school records in two events—the 200-yard individual medley (twice) and the 200 breaststroke (three times). He wound up with 58 points.

Captain Jim Thames broke the school record in the 100-yard freestyle against Alabama with a time of 52.2. He, along with co-captain Dave Darst, Sherer and freshman Joe Dane comprised the 400-yard freestyle relay team.

Sophomore Terry Goodwin set a new school record of 2:16.4 in the 200-yard backstroke against Vanderbilt and was a consistent performer in this event. And a pleasant surprise was freshman diver Bryan Starr, a high school All-American who captured first place in eight out of nine events.

Prospects for next year are bright since the best crop of lettermen (ten) Coach Ted Bitondo has ever had will be returning. Gone, however, will be freestylers Thames, Darst, and Nevin Patton, and there are some weaknesses to be strengthened. This year's edition of the Tigers should be extremely proud of its outstanding showing, winning several meets against teams with better material but less desire and spirit.

Captain Jim Thames begins his leg of the 400-yard freestyle relay in the 58-37 loss to Alabama here.

Al Sherer takes off on his anchor leg of the 400-yard freestyle relay which Sewanee won by less than a second to wrap up the meet against Tulane. It was one of the most thrilling races witnessed here this year, and the four Tiger swimmers combined as a team to whip four who had beaten them in individual events. Other members of the team pictured are Nevin Patton (in water) and Jim Thames (standing).

Wrestling

The Tiger grapplers wound up the season with a 5-1 record, losing only to SEIC champ Auburn 15-12 in dual meet competition. They defeated Emory (33-6), Georgia Tech (17-16), Eastern Kentucky (17-11), Maryville (20-11) and Chattanooga (17-16).

Co-Captains Paul Tessman and Joe Parker paced the team as Tessmann ran his win string to 36 in regular season matches, having lost only twice in his career here both in national competition. Parker had a 7-2 record, both losses coming to Auburn's 157-pound SEIC champ.

Tessmann was Sewanee's only SEIC champion while Parker finished second and freshmen Son Trask and John Colby took thirds. The Tigers finished fourth in the tournament behind Auburn, Georgia Tech and Chattanooga. Trask was a pleasant surprise as he had only a 2-4 record in the 123-pound class prior to the tournament. Colby was 3-2 and wound up with a 5-3 mark in the heavyweight division.

Other Tigers to finish the year with winning records were senior alternate captain Doug Seiters (4-3), sophomore Chip Langley (3-2) who wrestled in the 191 pound class despite weighing only about 170, and freshman Billy McKenzie (4-3). The Tigers lose only Seiters and Parker and return nine who competed in at least two matches this season.

Track

With nine returnees and a host of freshmen, Coach Horace Moore has reasons to be both optimistic and pessimistic about this year's team. Pacing the veterans will be Ted Waters, who holds the school record in the javelin, John Scott likewise in the hurdles, and Jack Fretwell in the mile.

Other returnees include Jo Colmore in the hurdles and pole vault, Doug Seiters in the 440 and relays, Jay Reynolds in the javelin, Randy Tucker in the shot, and Neal Iverson in the hurdles.

The team lost only one dual match last season, to MTSC, who is not on this year's schedule. The Tigers have finished second in the CAC two straight years and should do so again, if they can get the expected help from the freshmen.

Coach Moore, surveying his workouts prior to Spring vacation, mentioned four particular newcomers who are expected to help out. Jim DeWolfe in the dashes, Wynne Bush in the broad jump, Tyler Colley in the pole vault, and Rickey Rowe in the high jump have all previously recorded times and distances better than the present school records. A total of twenty freshman, many of whom have excellent records from high school performances, give Moore some hope, but they have yet to be proven under pressure here.

TIGERS

The team got its feet wet in a hurry as Vanderbilt provided the opposition in the first meet. Other tough opponents include Southwestern (whom Sewanee beat in a dual meet last year for the first time in nine years) and Austin Peay of Clarksville. Both the TIAC and CAC meets are here this year, and the Tigers look forward to bettering their performance of last season —fourth in the TIAC and second in the CAC. But it will take a supreme effort if they do so.

Cross Country

Led by captains Jack Fretwell and Derril Wright, the cross country team completed its second season since its reinstitution as a varsity sport. While the overall record of three wins and four losses was not outstanding, there were notable performances by both the team and individuals. Jack Fretwell had two firsts and three seconds, while Wright had one first —a school record against MTSC. Other lettermen include Larry Goodman, John May, Jim Freels, and Bob Urquhart. The team was coached by Ira B. "Coach of the Year" Read.

Baseball

Two All-CAC performers head the eight veterans who will bolster the baseball team this year. Phil Condra at first base and Larry Cunningham behind the plate won honors at the CAC tournament last spring in Danville, Ky.

On the hurling corps will be Al Sherer and Kyle Duncan, both returnees. Duncan also plays the outfield and is a pretty fair hitter.

The infield consists of Condra, freshman Chap Wasson at second, Harrell Harrison at short, and freshman Ernest Kirk at third. Returnees in the outfield include Dave Paschall and Dick Sims.

The squad faces a 15 game schedule following its return from a trip to Florida and Mississippi over Spring vacation. The Tigers wound up third in the CAC by virtue of a 15-5 win over Southwestern.

Golf

The golf squad was a big question-mark at the start of the season as only two men returned from last year's team which posted a 5-1-1 record. John Capers is a cinch to play the number-one position. "but beyond that it is a scramble," Coach Bryant noted.

Peter Phillips, a senior, and sophomores Bink McBride and Billy Albright will compete with newcomers Craig Stanfield, Rusty Napier, Billy Tunnel and Raymond Sifly for the other five positions. The team has an attractive schedule, with tournaments at Miami, Fla., on a spring trip to Miami and Florida Southern, the Southern Intercollegiate at Athens, Ga., and the TIAC and CAC, both at Sewanee. In a major upset, the golfers won the CAC by 19 strokes.

Tennis

The Sewanee tennis team opened its 1965 season on a pleasant note by defeating Lipscomb 6-1 on March 5, with the matches inside the new Guerry Courts providing an interesting contrast to the snow-covered ground outside.

The victory previews what should be an outstanding season as it was Lipscomb who ended Sewanee's four year reign atop the TIAC last year. Six of the seven who played regularly for last year's TIAC and CAC runners-up are returning, headed by captain Tom Rowland, who will probably play the number two position, and junior Frank Jones, the number one player.

Also returning are defending TIAC champions Joe Harrison and Jim Folbre, who should battle at the three and four positions, respectively. Junior Jay Gwinn, who played only doubles last season, is number 5 while John Vanderhorst and Mark Davenport will battle for the number six slot.

Jones and Rowland, Folbre and Harrison, and Gwinn and either of the other two will comprise the three doubles teams. A tough schedule was on tap with Sewanee expected to have little chance against Washington, Georgia and Georgia Tech, and even matches with Tennessee, Vanderbilt, and Lipscomb later in the year.

Coach Gaston Bruton was optimistic at the beginning of the season, especially after his team demolished Lipscomb. "Our number one doubles team didn't even play," he noted, "as we sent our second team against their first and our third against their second. We should win over half our matches." The Tigers are looking forward to winning the TIAC again, for the 16th time in 26 years, and they should finish second, for the third straight time, in the CAC.

Joe Harrison returns a volley as teammate Jim Folbre looks on as the Tigers opened their 1965 season with a 6-1 victory over Lipscomb. Harrison and Folbre defeated Lipscomb's number one doubles team in straight sets.

Intramurals

Intramurals

Intramurals at Sewanee are an integral part of student extra-curricular activity. The competition is fierce, the enthusiasm unrivaled. The game is played to be won, and this year, as in most, the competition has had its ups and downs. With the season two-thirds over, the trophy cannot be complacently claimed by any group, although the ATOs in the lead at this writing stand the best chance of carrying home the final honors.

Touch football dominated the fall season. The ATOs and Phi Delta Thetas were pre-season favorites, with the Fijis running rather brightly as a darkhorse. As the season progressed the Phis and the ATOs lived up to their ratings with strong victories. At mid-season the Phis and Fijis tangled, and the Fijis dropped from the undefeated ranks on a third-period field goal by Lencho Dicus. The Kappa Sigs gave the ATOs a big hand when they beat the Phis to give ATO sole possession of first place. Then in a tough head-on-head battle the ATOs beat the Phis to assure themselves of a first place berth. Outstanding players were Bob Borden and Jim Brittain for the Phis, Jody Smith and John Scott for ATO, and Allyn Lang and Sam Heck, KS.

In swimming, the ATOs made a repeat performance of last year's show. From the start they led in points, and John Turpit and Bryan Starr, both first year men, were their star performers. Led by Bert Polk the Betas took second place in the meet.

At the arrival of the mat season it was time for the Phis, the defending champions of last year's intramural season, to take their first points of the 1964-65 contest. Wilbur Wood, Phi Delt heavyweight, remained unbeaten for the fourth consecutive year by defeating John Colby who wrestled for the Independents. Colby, a freshman, fought the good fight, after being perhaps a bit shaken by Wood's being borne into the arena by several pledges, and will be the heavyweight to beat in years to come. Independents took second place with Carson Carlisle, Jack Harrison, and Colby all turning in good fights.

In cross-country, the Sigma Nus took their first points of the year. Pushing five men across the finish line to score better than anyone has done in a long time, the Snakes took first place and were paced by Gardner Neely. ATO Doug Stirling won the race, but there were none of his brothers near him. Delta Tau Delta finished second, and Phi Delta Theta took third place.

Battle of the giants: Colby vs. Wood.

Volleyball, second major sport of the year, promised to be a hot race with the Delts, KAs, SNs, and ATOs all going for the number one spot. The ATOs, spurred on by Most-Valuable-Player Bill Gosnell and All-Star Sandy Lumpkin, were, however, the ones to win. They took first place handily, going through the season with a perfect record. Delta Tau Delta placed second with only one loss, to ATO, and Kappa Alpha, placing four men on the All-Star Team, took the third spot. Sigma Nu was fourth.

Because of their great height, experience, and large number of men returning from last year, the Phi Gams were favored in pre-season polls to retain their basketball championship. Pre-season polls being what they are, and Sewanee intramurals being what they are, things were upset, and the season turned out to be a battle between Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Nu, and Independents. The Delts finally won the crown with an 11-1 record, beaten only by the Snakes. They were led by high-scorer and All-Star Team member Bobby Cannon. Sigma Nu, momentarily tied for first place after a close win over the Delts, was knocked down to second place by a very hot Fiji team. The Snakes were led by the shooting of Mike Lampley (forty-five points in one game) and Bill Thornton. The Independents placed two men on the All-Star Team, Dick Sims and Bruce Mulkey. The Indians finished third after whipping the Phis in a post-season playoff, and the Phis took the fourth position. Although ATO forward Jody Smith was the Most Valuable Player of the league, he could not pull his team any higher than a fifth place tie with Phi Gamma Delta.

In the intramural track meet, held shortly before Spring vacation, the ATOs took another of their firsts. Led by Jody Smith, the Taus were ahead from the first. Phi Gamma Delta took second place, and Sigma Nu, with three men in the finals and led by distance man John Carbaugh, took third.

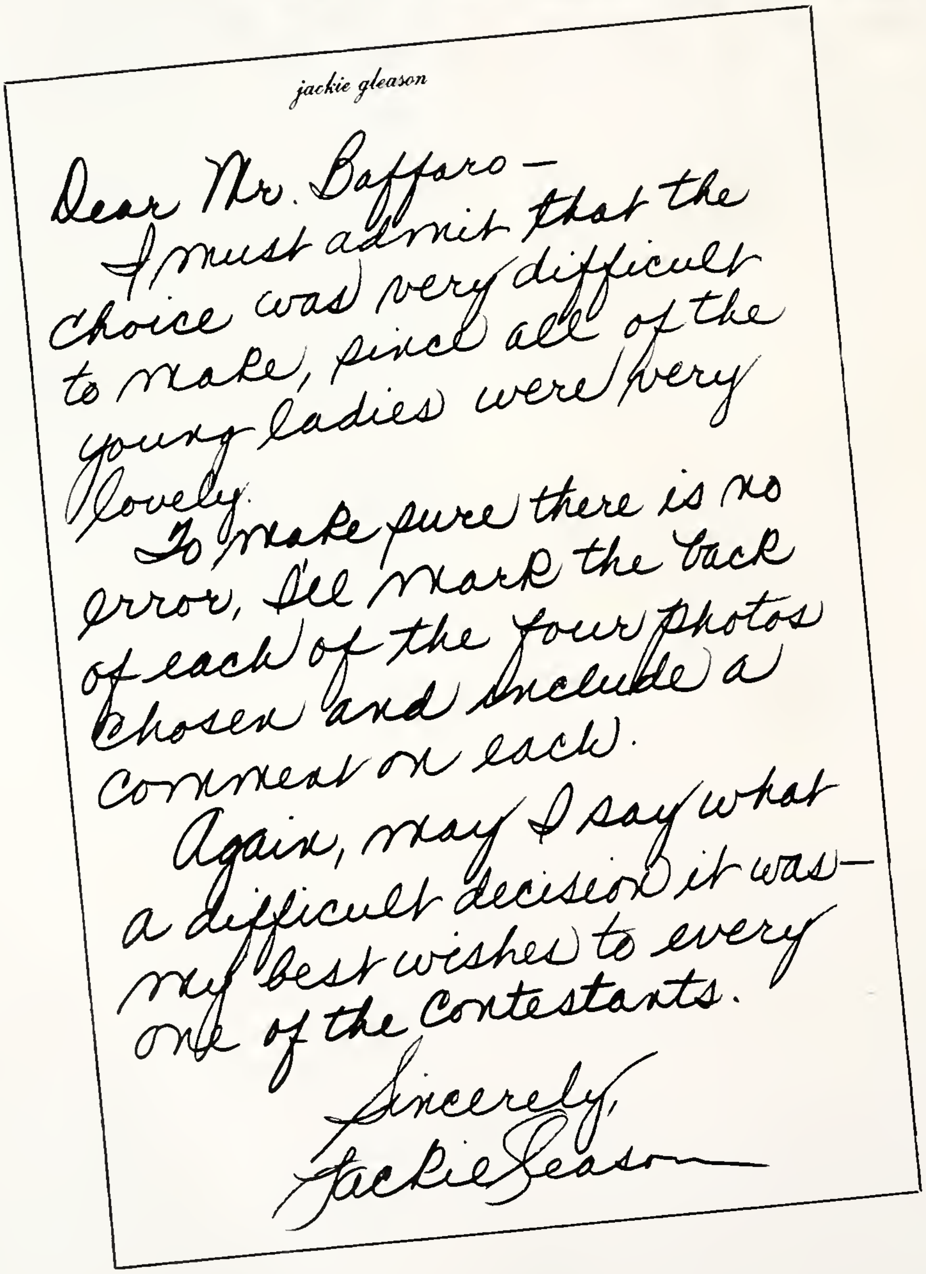
JACKIE GLEASON

Jackie Gleason Chooses

Little needs to be said to the modern American about the qualifications of Jackie Gleason for judging a beauty contest. His television program, American Scene Magazine, is famous for the glamour and beauty of the "extras": Gleason is known the world over not only for his very funny comic routines, but also for his artful dramatic roles in films like The Hustler and Gigot; he is obviously a "man of many talents".

For these reasons we have chosen him to select the winner in the Miss Sewanee Contest. He has, we think, chosen well. Congratulations to Miss Houston representing the KAs and to the eleven other paragons of beauty.

"HOW SWEET IT IS!"



jackie gleason

Dear Mr. Baffaro—

I must admit that the choice was very difficult to make, since all of the young ladies were very lovely.

To make sure there is no error, I'll mark the back of each of the four photos chosen and include a comment on each.

Again, may I say what a difficult decision it was— my best wishes to every one of the contestants.

Sincerely,
Jackie Gleason

Miss Patty Settle
1964 Homecoming Queen

Homecoming 1964

Friday, October 23, Homecoming Weekend officially commenced with the German Club dance featuring the Otis Redding Revue. In the annual house decoration contest, Kappa Sigma was declared winner displaying a pile of trash on its front porch roof with a tiger exclaiming, "Garbage Centre." Saturday afternoon a great Sewanee football team defeated the stubborn Centre Colonels 34-0.

The highlight of the week end was the selection of Miss Patty Settle as the 1964 Homecoming Queen. Miss Settle is from Gainsboro, Tennessee, and attends Tennessee Tech where she is a junior marketing major. She was escorted by David Sutton and represented the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity. This brown-haired, green-eyed beauty won over twelve other young ladies in the annual pageant.

Homecoming 1964 was blessed with clear, blue skies, pretty girls, a beautiful Homecoming Queen, and a great football game.

O.K. Now puff.

"Please, this week end."

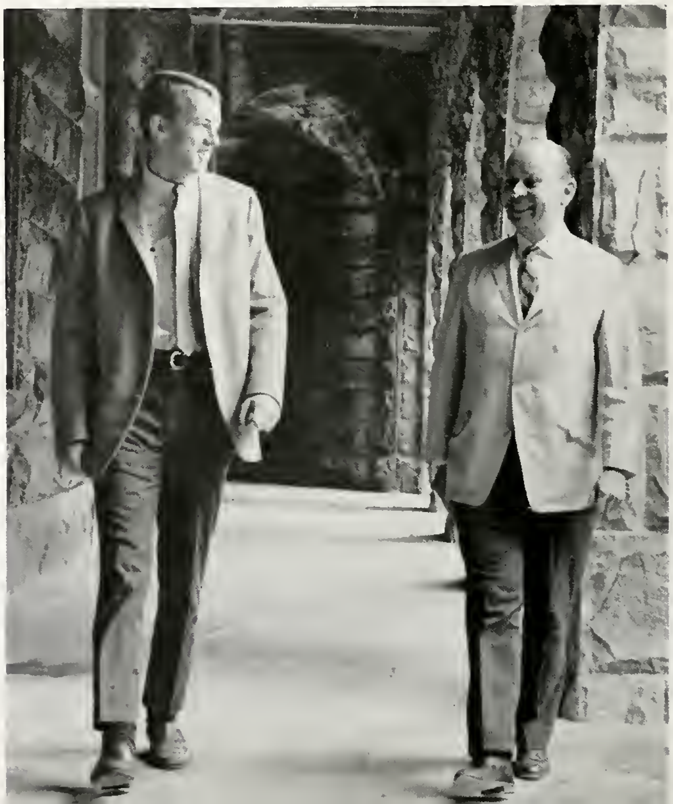
"Now I ask you, do I look like a Socialist?"

"Thank you, Miss, I can pick my own."

"Monsieur, feelthy pictures?"



"We fell into a burnin' ring of fire."

"Welcome, Freshmen!"

"Hey, Bill, what am I going to do with this stuff?"

"Drink, dammit! It's party week end."

"Wellll . . .?"

Gamma Gamma Chi

The GGC was organized in September of 1963, after the construction of an indoor gym in Gailor Hall, for the edification of persons deeply interested in the art and science of disadvantageously using their time for pursuits beyond the realm of scholastic matters. This mystic society has set for its goal the displacement of psychic energy from the libido instinct to a surrogated or disguised form which can therefore by-pass the censorship of the ego, and more importantly that part of the super ego instituted by Alma Mater and all her guiding authorities, so that this energy is manifested in the motor actions, with its object being such things as "indorm" basketball, handball, golf putting, badminton, one-arm chinning, dart throwing, etc. Its motto is "cathexis."

As a yearbook editor, wouldn't you like—

√ complete creative art assistance in planning and designing your book

√ actual known production performances (by records) of substantially less than 10 weeks, as required by most yearbook manufacturers. No contract claims, either, of an additional 4 days on delivery for each 1 day any deadline is missed

√ an association with a firm who has specialized in designing yearbooks perhaps longer than any other company

√ our insistence of your reading and checking page proofs to avoid (or at least minimize) possible glaring errors in the completed edition

√ an all out effort to please you in design, quality, and service at competitive prices

What more could you ask?
